CHRISTMAS COMES TO NOVATO

The shopping season officially opened today in Novato as holiday wreaths and bells went up along the south side of Grant Avenue. Frank Wright (left) of the city's street department puts up one of the decorations assisted by James Deckman, who seems to be part of the decorative wreath at right.

Romney Steps Down As HUD Secretary

Plans To Create Truth Group To Inform Public

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Romney announced today his resignation as secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to create a nongovernmental "body of truthseekers and communicators" who could help enlighten the public on real political issues.

President Nixon accepted the resignation, which Romney had said previously he would submit after the election.

At a news conference, Romney said the "real issues" were not discussed during Nixon's successful race for re-election because both the President and his Democratic challenger, Sen. George S. McGovern, feared that to do so would cost them votes.

Quoting from a wide range of commentators and philosophers ranging from Walter Lippmann to Thomas Jefferson, Romney said under present political conditions a candidate cannot win if he is "right too soon."

"I'm a living example of the fact that you can't afford to be right too soon and win," he said. "If you go back to my record on Vietnam you will see I was right. But even the press didn't understand my positions well enough to report them so I was washed out."

Romney became the first major member of Nixon's official family to have his resignation accepted by Nixon since the President's Nov. 7 reelection victory.

Romeny said he would leave as soon as his successor is confirmed.

GEORGE ROMNEY
Announces resignation

The White House has said it also will honor Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird's desire to step down and there have been indications other Cabinet changes will be a part of the governmental shakeup Nixon is planning.

Romney provided no specific details of the private citizens organization he was planning. He said he could start it from scratch or could build on one of several existing organizations which have sought his services.

He said it would be "premature" to name any of the existing organizations.

"I do want to correct one speculation," Romney said. "What I will organize is not a 'Republican Common Cause.' It will not be a partisan effort or just a lobbying effort."

One published report last week characterized Romney's planned group — as a GOP-oriented Common Cause, the citizen lobby formed by former HEW Secretary John Gardner.

Romney's letter of resignation was dated Nov. 9, the day after Nixon asked for formal resignations of all Cabinet officers and about 2,000 additional high-ranking bureaucrats.

Romney noted, however, that he had said last August he intended to leave the administration to devote himself "to public service in a private capacity."

The former Michigan governor who was an early aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination in 1968 has been HUD Secretary since the start of the Nixon administration.

Romney said in his letter to Nixon that at the present time political parties and candidates "tend to avoid specific positions concerning, and discussions of, 'life and death' issues in their formative and controversial stage for fear of offending uninformed voters and thus losing votes."

Flaming Crash Kills AF Pilot

By FRANK FARRARA

In a roaring, flaming crash an Air Force F-106 fighter jet smashed into a ridge near Novato yesterday shortly after takeoff from Hamilton Air Force Base and scattered in pieces. (See photo, page 5).

The pilot, identified as Capt. Michael D. Burmeister, 25, a native of Northfield, Minn., was killed instantly.

The plane exploded and burned on impact at 9:55 a.m. about 300 feet south of the west end of Laguna Vista, about four miles north of the Hamilton runway and west of Highway 101.

Five horseback riders in the vicinity suffered minor injuries from flying debris or shying horses and homes in the area were rattled by the crash.

The Air Force reported that a board of inquiry is being formed to investigate the cause of the crash. The site was closed off by security police and teams were checking the wreckage today.

Burmeister, assigned to the 87th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base near Marquette, Mich., was on a training flight at the time.

The plane suddenly roared low over the area. "We heard the crash and our house really shook," said Georgina Martin of 723 Atherton Avenue. "It scared the life out of us."

Her 16-year-old son, Rob, who was outside, saw a flash of fire, she said.

Dario J. Galatolo of 150 H Lane, one of the first at the crash scene said, "It was just unbelievable the way it (the plane) was scattered. We found the guys on the horse lane and the pilot's body. It was real tragic."

The injured horsemen, treated for minor burns and scrapes at Novato General Hospital, were Michael Whelan, 23, Pamela Wright, 21, Kathy Mazurette, 24, Norman Smith, 20, and Linda Feis, 18, all of San Rafael.

Whelan said "all of a sudden we heard what sounded like a sonic boom and it got louder and louder until it pierced our ears."

When the plane crashed, "We weren't even 15 feet from it," he said. "It blew us off our horses and the trees were falling all around."

The wreckage of the plane was spread about a half-mile across the ridge, with the pilot's helmet in a clump of grass and a burned parachute tangled in an oak tree.

The plane's wings had sliced off treetops on a neighboring ridge before it crashed and the concussion shattered a window in the home of Dr. Lloyd Kamins, on H Lane, below the site of the crash.

The nearest home was at 2524 Cerro Crest Way about 500 yards from the wreckage, but Eileen Larsen of 4 June Lane said contrary to reports that it was a wooded area, "There's lots of homes in this area."

Novato police, firemen, California Highway patrolmen and Air Force emergency crews were at the scene.

Fire Chief Jack W. Kidder said the fires caused by the crash had subsided by the time firemen arrived and flames didn't spread because of wet terrain. Firemen used 1,000 gallons of water to extinguish the burning wreckage, he said.

Nixon, Kissinger Meet Again On Suspension Of Peace Talks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon summoned security adviser Henry A. Kissinger to Camp David today for a third round of discussions since suspension of the secret talks in Paris. Nguyen Co Thach, North Vietnam's Deputy Foreign Minister, flew back to Hanoi from Paris for further instructions.

There was a series of diplomatic meetings to study the impasse which apparently hinges on South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu's demands for withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from the South and Hanoi's refusal to do so on grounds they are Vietnamese, not foreign, troops.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker conferred in Saigon with Thieu while Thieu's closest adviser, Hoang Duc Nha, flew to Paris to confer with South Vietnamese officials. Saigon reports last week said Thieu would ask that Nha sit in on the Kissinger-North Vietnamese talks which are to resume Dec. 4.

Nixon also was planning to meet with Thieu's personal emissary, Nguyen Phu Duc, at Camp David, but both sides had no comment on Saigon reports Thieu was seeking a personal meeting with Nixon. Duc went to Paris early last week for briefings by Kissinger on his talks with Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho.

The latest round of private Kissinger-Tho Paris negotiations, which began a week ago, were suspended to permit such diplomatic negotiations. Kissinger conferred with Nixon in New York immediately upon his arrival from Paris and again Sunday.

Despite the bleak outlook, the Saigon newspaper Tin Song, which is partly financed by Nha and sometimes acts as Thieu's mouthpiece, predicted the Paris negotiations would make "great developments in the coming days," especially with the arrival of Nha.

Communist diplomats said they would neither confirm nor deny reports that Hanoi would refuse to bow to South Vietnam's demand that a cease-fire can come only if North Vietnam withdrew home all its troops based in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

Thach refused to discuss the reasons for the suspension of the talks when he boarded the Aeroflot jetliner in Paris.

Thach arrived in Paris Nov. 17 with Tho, the chief peace negoiator. Tho, accompanied by nominal Hanoi peace delegation leader Xuan Thuy, conferred with Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong foreign minister, to prepare for Thursday's 169th semi-public Vietnam talks session.

The secret talks are strictly on Hanoi-American, South Vietnamese, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

In a parallel development, North Vietnam's permanent diplomatic representative in France, delegate general Vo Van Sung, conferred with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann on the current stage of the peace-making effort.

In Jakarta, Foreign Minister Adam Malik said Sunday President Suharto told Kissinger in Brussels last week that Indonesia was prepared to help monitor any Indochina ceasefire but that Jakarta first wanted clarification on a number of points. Malik said these points mainly concern the specific tasks Indonesia was expected to perform and who would pay the costs for Jakarta's participation on a control commission in Vietnam.

Peace Talk Breakthrough Was No Secret To Hanoi

SAIGON (UPI) —Nearly a week before the Oct. 8 "breakthrough" in the Vietnam peace talks announced by Hanoi, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong were notifying their military units that a cease-fire was pending, Communist documents disclosed.

The documents apparently indicate that the sudden shift in North Vietnam's insistence on ouster of President Nguyen Van Thieu as a pre-condition for a cease-fire had been contemplated for quite some time before White House peace envoy Dr. Henry A. Kissinger learned of it Oct. 8. Kissinger listed that as the date of the big "breakthrough" during his Oct. 26 news conference.

Other Communist documents made available to UPI today by American sources show that:

—Local units were told on Oct. 21, five days before Radio Hanoi disclosed the proposed truce agreement, that the Communists expected Kissinger to "be in Hanoi Oct. 22."

—The bombing of North Vietnam would be "stopped effective Oct. 24." President Nixon ordered the bombing limited to a point south of the 20th parallel Oct. 23.

—A cease-fire would be jointly announced by Radio Hanoi, Radio Moscow and the Voice of America Oct. 27.

—The truce agreement would be signed Oct. 30 or 31 and take effect within 72 hours.

A Communist Central Office of South Vietnam (COSVN) directive dated Oct. 15 indicates that Viet Cong military units in the field were being informed of the general outline of the terms of the proposed ceasefire agreement almost as soon as Thieu himself learned of them.

The COSVN directive described the terms as "a very great victory of our people." South Vietnamese government sources say Thieu first learned of the proposed terms Oct. 14.

Some of the Communist documents were classified "absolute secret" and recipients were ordered to burn them after reading and familiarizing themselves with the contents. Under no circumstances, the documents said, were copies to be made.

Documents originated with both COSVN, which U.S. sources say takes its orders from the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary government, and the B3 Front—headquartered astride the tri-border of Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam—which takes its orders directly from Hanoi.

The document that listed the proposed Kissinger trip to Hanoi Oct. 22 originated with the Da Nang City Party Committee, which takes its orders from the B3 Front. A COSVN document listed the expected date of Kissinger's arrival in Hanoi as

Sausalito To Purchase School For City Hall

After nearly a year of negotiations, the City of Sausalito has tentatively agreed to purchase the old Central School on Caledonia Street for a city hall, City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr revealed today.

He said the city will pay the Sausalito School District $276,000 for the building, which has been vacant since the district closed the school about 18 months ago.

St. Cyr said the city is asking the school district for a six-month option to give Sausalito time to arrange financing. The city will sell bonds, then pay them off with money obtained from rental of the present city hall, located in the heart of Sausalito's downtown business community. But he said the amount of income which will be derived from the rental has not yet been determined.

The building will house city offices and — at least temporarily — the city library. Later the library is expected to construct its own facility, either on the school ground or the site of the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad station across from Central, St. Cyr said.

A date for the move to the school is to be set in the next few weeks.

The school district board will consider the sale agreement when it meets at 7:30 p.m. today in the district office. The Sausalito City Council is scheduled to approve the purchase at its meeting next Tuesday, according to the city manager.

Capitol Tree Cut, But May Not Make It

ROAN MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (UPI) — A 500-foot balsam fir, cut as the Christmas tree for the U.S. Capitol lawn, may never make it to Washington.

Cherokee National Forest representative Lynn Young said the tree was to have been airlifted Monday from near the top of Roan Mountain to a waiting truck.

But young said Pentagon officials have turned down a request for a helicopter to transport the tree to the town of Roan Mountain.

Young said if a helicopter is not provided, another tree would have to be chosen because a road would have to be built to get to the giant balsam.

NOW WORTH $3.50

Inflation Has Its Effect On Value Of Human Body

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You're worth more than you may have thought.

It used to be common knowledge that the chemical value of the human body was 98 cents. (Ask anybody over 35.)

This was pretty deflating to some egos. But inflation has come along to make them feel a bit less put down.

The Chemical and Engineering News reported last Month that, "at current chemical prices, the adult human body is worth $3.50."

This was somewhat restorative to wounded egos, even discounting inflation. But now there is even better news.

Biochemist W. D. Noteboom of the University of Missouri at Columbia wrote to C&EN taking issue with its estimate.

What C&EN failed to feed into its computer, Dr. Noteboom said, is the value of human serum.

This serum, indispensable in many medical situations, is worth $130 to $170 per liter (1.06 quarts), Noteboom said.

One kind, known as Type AB, retails for $270 per liter.

An adult male human being contains about five liters of blood, source of the precious, life-saving serum.

So this alone would be worth "an absolute minimum of roughly $650."

Add $650 to $3.50 and you get $653.50, presumably the rock-bottom value "at current prices."

This looks like a gain over the old 98-cent price of something like 1,500 per cent.

So, don't sell yourself short.

MARTIN BORMANN
In South America?

Nazi Leader Bormann Said Alive

LONDON (UPI) —A London newspaper said today Martin Bormann, the object of one of the world's most intense hunts for Nazi criminals, is alive and hiding in South America. It said he was last seen Oct. 5 on the border between Argentina and Chile.

The article, the first of a five-part series written for the London Daily Express by American writer Ladislas Farago and Express reporter Stewart Steven, was illustrated by three pictures reportedly showing Bormann as he appeared Oct. 5.

Bormann was deputy to Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler and was sentenced to die by the Nuernberg tribunal, which tried him in absentia but he fled before Allied agents could arrest him at the end of World War II. Some experts believe he died with Hitler as the Third Reich collapsed.

But the Daily Express said he is living under the names of Ricardo Bauer and Juan Gomez and when last known, he lived on an Argentine ranch owned by a member of the family Krupp, which during the war was instrumental in arming Hitler's forces.

The Daily Express said it would offer "incontrovertible evidence" that Bormann did not die as many believe in 1945, but is instead a prosperous businessman with high ranking friends in several South American governments.

The photographs the Daily Express published show a balding, white-haired and thickset man confronting a man the article identified as a high ranking official of Argentina's Central Intelligence Agency at an immigration post on the Argentine-Chilean border.

But in Vienna, one of the world's top Nazi hunters, Simon Wiesenthal, discounted a London newspaper report today that Bormann is alive and living in South America.

"This is a bluff story," said Wiesenthal, a former concentration camp inmate who has dedicated his life to tracking down nazi war criminals.

Army Is Alerted In Irish Violence

DUBLIN (UPI) —The Irish government today followed up a night of pro-Irish Republican Army demonstrations in Dublin by cancelling all police leaves and placing the army on standby alert to prevent the violence of Northern Ireland from spilling across the border.

IRA leaders called for mass agitation and nationwide strikes to force the release of imprisoned IRA leader Sean MacStiofain before he starves and causes the government to resign.

Thousands of supporters surged around a Dublin hospital until early today demanding the release of MacStiofain, leader of the extremist Provisional Wing of the IRA. Hundreds of police guarded against any more efforts by followers to rescue him.

"The government has imported the war from the six counties (Northern Ireland) to the Republic," one IRA chief told a crowd today. "If (Prime Minister Jack) Lynch wants to declare war on us here, we accept the challenge. He will not win."

A government-appointed doctor said MacStiofain could die at any time within the next 12 days from a hunger and thirst strike he started when arrested nine days ago. An IRA spokesman said he would be dead within 48 hours.

In Belfast, gunmen ambushed a Roman Catholic eye specialist driving his two teen-age sons to school, killing one of the boys. The father, Dr. Peter Gormley, 52, and the other son were wounded in the gunfire that punctured their car on a busy street in the Shankhill area, police said.

SEAN McSTIOFAIN
Release Is Sought

The youth was the 640th person killed in three years of sectarian violence between Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland.

With its police and army alerted, the Irish Republic stepped up security across the country and created roadblocks to check cars entering and leaving Northern Ireland for arms.

The move coincided with the Irish government announcing details of a new bill aimed at stamping out the IRA and other illegal organizations. Under its provisions, the testimony of a senior police officer is all that will be needed to convict a suspected member of an outlawed group.

Truman's Decision: Invasion Or A-Bomb

NEW YORK (UPI) —Former President Harry S Truman believed the alternative to the atomic bombing of Japan was an armed invasion possibly costing the lives of 250,00 Americans, Margaret Truman Daniels states in her upcoming biography of her father.

For his decision to proceed with the nuclear bombing, Truman was praised by Winston Churchill as the savior of Western civilization, Mrs. Daniel writes in the latest segment of her book, "Harry S Truman," excerpts of which were published in Life magazine.

Mrs. Daniels describes a mock trial held after a dinner party in the White House when Churchill was "tried" for his role in bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in the last stages of World War II.

The then British Prime Minister has said to Truman "Mr. President, I hope you have your answer ready for that hour when you and I stand before Saint Peter and he says: 'I understand you two are responsible for putting off those atomic bombs. What have you got to say for yourselves?'"

The "trial" involving Churchill's role then began with court officers and a jury selected from among the dinner guests—Defense Secretary Robert Lovett, W. Averell Harriman, Gen. Omar Bradley and Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Truman was judge and the guests assumed historic roles, with Bradley as Alexander the Great. Others played Socrates, Julius Caesar and Aristotle.

Churchill, winning "acquittal," later confessed to Truman he once thought little of him as a successor to Franklin D.Roosevelt, but "I misjudged you badly. Since that time, you, more than any other man, have saved Western civilization."

In later years Truman said of the atomic bombing: "I could not worry about what history would say about my personal morality I made the only decision I ever knew how to make. I did what I thought was right."

Accident Victim Gets Settlement

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Larry Callis, a 28-year-old father of three who lost both legs and an arm in an accident last summer, has won a $1.5 million out-of-court settlement with Southern Pacific Railroad.

Callis, of Yuma, Ariz., was working as a switchman in the Yuma yards July 11 when a freight car was shoved by a switch engine into another car on which he was working. Callis filed a $4 million suit against Southern Pacific after he was told he was ineligible to collect disability benefits because he had been working for the railroad only two months.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Probe Starts

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — A state commission trying to find out whether a student's bomb or a policeman's shotgun blast killed two black students at Southern University called its first investigative session today, in private.

Blacks still angry over the deaths 11 days ago were convinced police were to blame. About 300 persons, mostly Negroes, chanted "Murders! Murders!" Sunday at a memorial service for the two slain students.

"As black people of this state, we must say, 'Give us liberty or give us death,' because if we don't, they'll kill every damned one of us," civil rights worker Joseph Hammond told the crowd.

Yesterday's gathering, held on the steps of the Louisiana Capitol, was the second memorial for Denver A. Smith and Leonard D. Brown, both 20, who were killed by buckshot during a campus clash with police Nov. 16.

Prisoners Freed

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto announced the freeing today of all 617 remaining Indian prisoners captured in last December's two-week war with India over Bangladesh. Some sick and wounded troops were repatriated earlier.

"I have released you today," Bhutto said as he visited the Indian POWs at the Pakistani camp at Lyallpur.

At the same time in New Delhi, India offered to release about 5,000 Pakistani war prisoners captured on the western front as a gesture responding to the move by Bhutto.

Bhutto's announcement came on the eve of a meeting at Lahore between the Indian and Pakistani chiefs of staff, meeting to try to complete negotiations on a Kashmir demarcation line. Agreement on this is delaying mutual troop withdrawals.

Setting Up Rules

HELSINKI (UPI) — Western diplomats said today they will override Soviet objections and adopt a set of rules on how to run the forthcoming proposed European security conference.

The 34 ambassadors from the United States, Canada and 32 European nations are now in the fourth day of their talks on outlining the ground rules for the conference.

"Even a Boy Scout troop must have rules of procedure," one diplomat said in explaining why a Soviet attempt to have no rules at all collapsed.

He said hopes were high that these rules could be adopted today — almost record speed for an international meeting of this complexity — with the 34 ambassadors then getting down to the real business of a security conference tomorrow.

More Training

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Apollo 17's astronauts begin their final week of scheduled training today by rehearsing the precise procedures that will lead to their descent to the moon in two weeks.

Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Dr. Harrison H. "Jack" Schmitt are scheduled to set out on the final Apollo expedition Dec. 6. They consider themselves ready to go now, but training coordinators have scheduled brushup work for the rest of the week.

Today's schedule included a lunar descent simulation in spacecraft trainers with flight controllers at the mission control center in Houston directing the exercise as if it were real.

To Get Gifts

NEW YORK (UPI) — A spokesman for the Committee of Liaison with Families of Servicemen Detailed in North Vietnam disclosed yesterday that North Vietnam will permit American POWs to receive both Christmas presents and cards this year.

Mrs. Cora Weiss, co-chairman of the committee, said the North Vietnamese government promised in a telegram delivered Sunday to allow each American prisoner to receive a single package, weighing up to 11 pounds.

The only stipulation, according to the telegram, is that packages must be sent "in conformity with the already set regulations of shipment," which includes routing them through Moscow.

Kissinger Story Bared As Hoax

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — In a special, one-page edition Sunday, something calling itself the "Harvard Crimson" announced that presidential adviser Henry Kissinger will leave his post in January to return to Harvard.

The "news" created ripples until it was remembered that this was the weekend of the Harvard-Yale football game—a traditional time for the annual newspaper hoax.

Actually, the Yale Daily News had published the story as a spoof of the Crimson.

"It's all fabricated," Yale Daily News editor Brad Graham said. "Every year either Harvard does something under the logo of the Yale Daily News or we do something under the logo of the Crimson. This year was our turn."

Plot Crushed

BEIRUT (UPI) — A Beirut newspaper quoted King Hussein of Jordan today as saying his security service recently crushed a plot against his regime. But he did not mention an assassination attempt the newspaper reported in an earlier edition.

The newspaper An Nahar said Hussein told it Libya and the Palestinian guerrilla movement were behind the plot, which Hussein said involved only one army officer.

The newspaper reported Sunday that the 37-year-old monarch was slightly wounded nine days ago when a Jordanian air force pilot fired a rocket at his personal helicopter outside the royal palace in Amman.

The Jordanian government announced Nov. 18 that Hussein was admitted to an army hospital for treatment for fatigue. He was released a few days later.

Cuba Promotions

MIAMI (UPI) — Seven members of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's cabinet have been promoted to vice premier and given special areas of responsibility in a government reorganization announced by Havana Radio.

The move revamps the country's administrative setup all the way down to the local level. Its effect on the government's underlying structure was not yet clear.

Havana Radio in a broadcast monitored in Miami Saturday said the changes were adopted Friday at a meeting of the cabinet, acting on a suggestion from the politburo of the Communist party of Cuba.

1,300 Go Home

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command said today 1,300 American servicemen went home last week, leaving 28,000 U.S. troops in South Vietnam.

The figure is the lowest since Feb. 25, 1965, when there were 24,900 men in Vietnam. Another 1,000 Americans must be sent home before the end of the month to meet President Nixon's goal of 27,000 by Dec. 1.

The majority of the men — 900 — that went home last week were Army personnel. There were also 100 marines and 300 airmen who left the country.

South Viets Stop Attack By North

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese marines supported by U.S. jets rolled back a North Vietnamese counter-attack today in the heaviest fighting around Quang Tri City in two months, field reports said.

Communist gunners fired 3,400 rounds into marine and paratroop positions in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, the reports said. It was the most intensive barrage in Quang Tri Province, 435 miles north of Saigon, since the North Vietnamese offensive began there March 30 with 3,500 rounds a day.

The biggest battle in the province since Quang Tri City was recaptured by the marines Sept. 16 began at sundown Saturday. It centered on Vinh Hoa Phuong, a farming and fishing village, now largely ruined, on the salt flats and sand dunes seven miles north of Quang Tri City and five miles south of the Cua Viet River.

For the past two weeks the marines have been edging slowly northward trying to recapture the mouth of the Cua Viet and deny it to the North Vietnamese, who use it as a supply route. U.S. jets have been dropping mines into the Cua Viet to hamper North Vietnamese supply craft, UPI correspondent Donald A. Davis said.

In the air war, bad weather held U.S. jet fighter-bomber strikes against North Vietnam down to 30 sorties for the second straight day, the U.S. command said.

The command also reported the loss of the ninth plane in Indochina in eight days. It said a U.S. Navy F8 Crusader developed mechanical trouble while returning from a strafing mission Sunday over South Vietnam and the pilot ejected from his crippled plane near the carrier Oriskany. He was fished unhurt out of the South China Sea by a rescue helicopter.

Cancer Research Offers New Hope

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Citing "tremendous strides" in cancer research, the director of the National Cancer Institute says the day may soon come when the testing of a single drop of blood from a finger will be used to diagnose the disease.

Dr. Frank J. Rauscher Jr. said Sunday that a "great deal" was happening in cancer research and that "some very important progress is being made."

"In fact, I would say that our knowledge of cancer—what causes it, how it can be prevented, how to spot it in early stages, and how to treat it—has advanced more in the last two years than in the previous 50," Rauscher said.

Rauscher made his predictions in a copyrighted interview published in U.S. News & World Report.

But he predicted that in 1973 about 645,000 new cases of cancer will be discovered in the United States and that 350,000 Americans will die from the 100 or so forms of the disease.

Rauscher said from 300 to 400 institutions were grappling with the problems of cancer and that they were making "tremendous strides". He estimated the total being spent each year, both public and private, at $750 million.

The advances include the development of a machine to diagnose the disease. The approach is not yet widely used, he said, because of technological problems.

DR. FRANK RAUSCHER
A single drop of blood

"But I suspect that some day this approach will be commonplace," Rauscher said. "We can hope that soon we can take a drop of (blood) serum from a pinprick in the finger and run the serum through a battery of automated tests so that we can tell whether you have cancer, and if so, what type."

Rauscher said another major advance was the development of an anticancer vaccine. Scientists are "quite far along" in applying vaccine to animals, Rauscher said, and were beginning to use it on human beings, but he said it was "much too early to tell" how well it will work.

New Theory On Moon: Younger

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The moon may be younger than Earth but made of older materials and may contain large deposits of sapphires and rubies, a scientist said today.

Dr. Don L. Anderson, director of the seismological laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, revealed his new theory of the moon's origin, composition and evolution in the scientific periodicals "Nature" and "Science," Cal Tech said.

He also said the moon's interior may be so hot at the present time that it is molten, and its outer shell may be 120 miles thick, compared with the 50-mile thick shell of earth.

The moon did not begin to form until the earth was halfway "assembled", Anderson said.

He said the solar system was once a rotating disc of very hot gas which cooled during billions of years. The planets, moons and other heavenly bodies condensed out of the hot gas as it cooled and reached temperatures at which the elements turned to solids.

The center of the gas cloud, or nebula, became the sun.

"Moon-like bodies were probably abundant in the early solar system and formed the nuclei upon which later condensates accreted to form the planets," he said. "Most of the interiors of earth and the other inner planets—Mercury, Venus and Mars—are composed mostly of later condensates and lower temperature minerals, although their original nuclei would be moon-like."

"During the early formation of the moon, one of the first minerals to come out of the gas was corundum," he said. "Corundum, when colored by impurities, is known as sapphire or ruby," and "the deep interior of the moon has abundances of these minerals," Anderson said.

Israelis Spend Most On National Defense

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In 1970 the United States' per capita expenditure on defense was $379, but the figure was only second in the world.

The title of the highest per capita expenditure in the world went to Israel—$477 for every man, woman and child.

The statistics come from a 58-page world military expenditures report compiled by the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmanemt Agency and made public Sunday.

The survey said the Soviet Union was third in per capita arms expenditures with $270, followed by Sweden with $139.

The analysis noted it was not possible to compile precise statistics for many countries which do not make figures public or which use different accounting methods.

It pointed out that during a recent year estimates of the Soviet military budget varied from $40 billion to $84 billion.

Calculations of China's outlays as a portion of its gross national product (GNP) ranged from 5 to 15 per cent. The report took the middle ground, estimating China's expenditures in 1970 at $10 billion, or 8.3 per cent of its GNP, and the Soviet military budget at $65 billion, or 6 to 10 per cent of its GNP.

The American budget was $77.8 billion, or 7.5 per cent of the U.S. gross national product for the survey year.

This year, the report said, U.S. defense spending has dropped to $76.5 billion, or 6.4 per cent of the GNP, the lowest proportion devoted to defense since before the Korean War, which started in 1950.

Figures for Russia and China for the last two years were not available.

The study also revealed that the United States spends more than one-third of all the money expended on defense throughout the world. U.S. outlays during the past decade ranged from a high of 42 per cent of the world total to a low of 35 per cent last year.

The largest portion of national wealth is devoted to military expenditures by the nations of the Middle East and Indochina, the survey showed. Topping the list in 1970 for the second year in a row was South Vietnam, which spent 34 per cent of its GNP on defense.

Israel was second with 25.1 per cent, followed by Jordan with 20.5 per cent and North Vietnam with 20 per cent. Other nations which put more than 10 per cent of their GNP into military expenditures were Laos, Cambodia, North Korea, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Albania and Iraq.

Norway Government Hit As Mystery Sub Leaves

OSLO (UPI) —The Norwegian government came under heavy criticism today from an indignant press and a skeptical parliament because it allowed an intruding foreign submarine to escape from the Sognefjord on Norway's west coast.

The submarine, which highly-placed naval sources identified as a Russian vessel, slipped out of the fjord Saturday, after a 14 day cat-and-mouse game with Norwegian naval ships and aircraft.

The military affairs committee of the Storting (Parliament) said it will require a report on the issue from the government and from the armed forces.

"The submarine hunt question has already been broached in the Storting and this debate will be continued," Committee Chairman Gunnar Alf Larsen told UPI.

Other parliament members expressed doubt about the decisions taken by the government and the defense command during the chase.

"It would have been better, much more satisfying, if the navy had managed to arrest the submarine," said Svenn Stray, former leader of the Conservative party's parliamentary group.

Magee Asks Dismissal Of Case Again

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ruchell Magee, a San Quentin Prison inmate accused in the same Marin County courthouse shootings for which Angela Davis was tried and acquitted, opened his murder-kidnap trial today by asking the court to "set aside all proceedings" against him.

Magee, who over a period of years has repeatedly upset court decorum by violent antics and self-written briefs and motions, had a sheaf of papers ready when he came into court for his long-delayed trial.

The case involves the Marin Civic Center shootout of Aug. 7, 1970, during which Superior Court Judge Harold Haley and three others were killed.

Magee was not manacled, as he has frequently been in earlier court appearances, and wore a neat yellow shirt, gray trousers and gray jacket.

The black convict carried a manila envelope filled with yellow legal sheets on which he had written his motions.

Presenting the first one to the court clerk, Magee said: "We have a petition here for a warrant for removal. The motion is to set aside all proceedings."

Another motion asked for the dismissal of Magee's court appointed attorney, Robert Carrow. In that, Carrow joined Magee, who has always insisted on acting as his own lawyer despite judicial determinations that he is incompetent to do so.

The Magee petitions were "received" but not "filed" by the court. Superior Judge Morton R. Colvin called a recess to discuss them in chambers, he said, in order not to prejudice the defendant.

Magee said discussing them in open court would be "no prejudice to me," and Carrow also asked for an open court hearing. But Colvin called Carrow and state prosecutor Albert Harris into his chambers.

Magee's case was separated from that of Angela Davis early in the proceedings against her.

Driver Must Now Be Wary

Drivers: Be alert. Now that summer is drawing to a close and schools are opening, each driver should reacquaint himself with the locations of the schools in his area.

Two to three months of no school causes too many drivers to forget just how many children walk to school, ride their bicycles and play in these areas.

Remember that the speed limit in the area of a school is 25 miles per hour during the time students are entering and leaving school as well as when the school has a function on campus involving that school.

The only way to reduce the number of traffic accidents involving motor vehicles and children in and around schools is to be more alert and look for the unexpected.

You never can tell when a small child will run into the street from between parked cars.

DOCUMENT

Oct. 24.

Documents dated in advance of the Oct. 8 "breakthrough" were circulated by local Communist agencies in both South Vietnam's northern provinces and the Central Highlands, indicating that word of an impending cease-fire was fairly general knowledge among Communist field units long before allied units had any indication of an early end to fighting, or before even Kissinger knew of it.

An Oct. 5 document circulated by the Communist District Party Committee for Pleiku Province said:

"According to the information from the higher echelons, the situation in South Vietnam has clearly led to a political solution to settle the war."

The previous day, Oct. 4, the Communist Current Affairs Committee of Quang Nam Province announced a truce in the offing and called for a three-phase campaign.

The committee said the first phase of its "plan for a general uprising to be initiated when a political solution (truce) is found" would go into effect that same day, Oct. 4, and continue until the cease-fire was signed.

Phase one called for preparation of rosters of "tyrants" to be killed, seizing and holding of additional territory, and making plans for destruction of government controlled areas not held by the Communists.

Phase two was to begin on the date the cease-fire agreement was signed and continue until the time it went into effect. During that phase, Communist military units were to encircle government outposts and "kill tyrants."

The third phase, to begin when the truce took effect, called for demonstrations by the populace to welcome Communist military units into villages and hamlets, demonstrations demanding ouster of Thieu, installation of a coalitionm government and presentation of petitions by the populace to a proposed International Control Commission asking that each area be recognized as under Communist control.

"We should conduct a (Communist) flag raising campaign...slogans and posters should also be displayed...in...liberated and controlled areas, disputed areas and also in the cities, province capitals, district seats and along strategic communications roads," the document said.

Swindling Of Hughes Claimed In Article

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) —A task force of federal agents is investigating the alleged swindling by "insiders" of millions of dollars from Howard Hughes' Nevada operations, according to the Oakland Tribune.

The newspaper said Sunday the agents were also looking into the possibility that underworld figures siphoned off money from Hughes' gambling operations and kickbacks of 15 per cent were paid by entertainers to executives who booked them into Hughes' five Nevada hotels.

In a dispatch from Las Vegas, the Tribune said the investigators, including 20 from the Internal Revenue Service, have been checking on funds that vanished from Hughes' Nevada ventures since last Spring.

The Tribune said it learned the task force may seek grand jury indictments early next year but a full five-part inquiry will not be completed for several months after that.

"The thrust of the investigation here is to determine whether there were any federal violations, such as income tax evasion, in the alleged disappearance of vast sums through the manipulation by insiders of Hughes' various enterprise," the newspaper said.

Hughes Tool Co. has filed a $9 million federal court suit in Salt Lake City that charged five individuals and five companies with conspiring to sell Hughes mining claims at prices "far in excess of the value of the properties."

A similar state court suit has been filed in Las Vegas against eight defendants and three corporations.

The Tribune said the five areas of inquiry were:

—The purchase of 2,700 nearly worthless mining claims for Hughes at prices reportedly totaling more than $18 million.

—Huge sums shunted to foreign countries instead of going to Hughes Tool Co., parent firm of the Hughes operations.

—A drop in profits at the seven casinos purchased by Hughes after he moved to Las Vegas in 1966.

—The possible siphoning of money from gambling operations by underworld figures.

—Kickbacks of up to 15 per cent paid by entertainers to executives who booked them into Hughes' five Nevada hotels.

New Ambassador To U.S. Chosen

TEL AVIV (UPI) —Prime Minister Golda Meir's closest personal adviser, Simha Dinitz, has been chosen to replace Yitzhak Rabin as Israel's ambassador to the United States, two newspapers said Sunday.

The newspapers, Ma'ariv and Yedioth Ahronoth, said Dinitz, director-general of the prime minister's office, will assume the post early next year. He is not a career diplomat.

Miss Teen-Age America Picked

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Elissa Marie Galbraith of Clarion, Pa., the new Miss Teen-Age America, will use her $10,000 college scholarship to major in retailing at William and Mary University.

"I want to enter the fashion merchandising field," the 16-year-old blue-eyed brunette said after winning the pageant Saturday night. She was selected from among 51 contestants.

Miss Galbraith, daughter of Army Maj. and Mrs. James Conner Galbraith, broke into tears at the announcement.

She added the title to two others she has won this year—Miss Autumn Leaf Festival and Miss Brookville, Pa.

Over 30 Years Experience In Nutrition

HERE'S HEALTH!

by JUNE EMBURY

Dr. Robert Atkins has started a DIET REVOLUTION for sure, in keeping with the title of his book. It's been sold out as a result of the physician's Bay Area radio and TV appearance. Evidently, 10,000 of his patients, including many of the most prominent and "beautiful people" are living examples of this "joyful, permanent weight-loss" method, also known as the Vogue Super Diet.

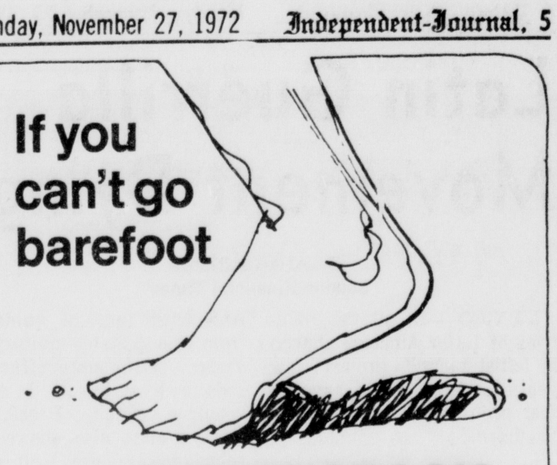

The Atkins menues include proteins, salads "dripping with rich dressings", butter, mayonnaise, heavy cream, special diet versions of desserts and breads and vitamin-mineral supplements. Incidentally, we were delighted to find that Dr. Emory Thurston's Fortress tablets provide, in combination, the potencies recommended by Dr. Atkins. Of course, the supplements may be selected individually as well.

Next week, more about this exciting DIET REVOLUTION. Meantime, remember our nutrition counter specialties, based on recipes in the book.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

Latin Guerrilla Movement Dying

By ALAN RIDING
London Financial Times

MEXICO —In all the countries of Latin America shaken by leftist guerrilla groups a few years ago, the rebels have either been wiped out or are on the defensive.

In Brazil, Colombia, Guatemala and Bolivia, once-impressive guerrilla organizations have been dismantled; the surviving rebels have taken refuge in remote jungle districts, only occasionally clashing with army patrols. Even in Uruguay, home of the most successful of all guerrilla movements, the "Tupamaros" have been badly hurt since President Juan Maria Bordaberry took office early this year. In no country do guerrillas have the smallest possibility of seizing power in the foreseeable future.

Perhaps the main reason for the defeat of the guerrillas has been the rapid training and rearming of the continent's armies and police forces.

When the guerrillas began their assaults, robberies and kidnapings, the security forces of most countries were impotent. For awhile, it even seemed that some rebels might score military as well as political victories over the ruling establishments.

But two years were usually enough to train as elite "anti-guerrilla" unit in each army. And with tactical guidance from United States military advisers, the counteroffensive soon made an impact. In many countries, notably Brazil, the local armies also showed no reluctance to use torture to extract information from suspected or proven guerrillas.

The first effect of the mobilization of armies and police against rural guerrillas was to drive the rebels into the cities. And there, after making a dramatic initial impact, many were killed. Frequently, the United States and local military strategists concentrated on killing the guerrilla leaders, presuming correctly that many movements would collapse without their daring and usually-charismatic Comandantes.

Since 1967, when Ernesto "Che" Guevara was slain by Bolivia's United States-trained Special Forces, numerous martyrs have been born on the left —Carlos Marighella and Carlos Lamarca in Brazil, the Peralta brothers in Bolivia, Yon Sousa and Turcios Lima in Guatemala, Genaro Vazquez in Mexico— and, with them, has slowly died the guerrilla movement.

Weakened from within and harassed from without, the final fate of the guerrillas was to be rejected by the poor peasants and exploited workers whose those lot they were trying to improve. In almost every case, made-up of middle-class students and intellectuals, the guerrillas had neither personal nor organizational contact with the peasants and workers. And neither the peasants nor workers were willing to risk their lives or even the little they possessed by actively helping the guerrillas.

For example, Latin America's peasants are generally so indoctrinated by centuries of internal colonialism that "they know their place." Che Guevara was not alone in being betrayed by peasants.

The worker organizations, on the other hand, are either dominated by conservative governments or tied to unadventurous Communist parties. For example, even during Mexico's relatively moderate student movement in 1968, the labor unions actively helped the government fight the protestors. And in Uruguay, the Tupamaros failed to add significant support for the "Broad Front" candidate, General Seregni, during last year's presidential elections.

There are of course rare exceptions of grass-root support. Bolivia's fiery tin miners have invariably assisted leftist guerrilla groups. In Mexico, the rural guerrilla leader, Lucio Cabanas, clearly receives food and support from the peasants of the state of Guerrero where he is active. But Cabanas is a native of Guerrero and the local peasants might not trust a Mexican from another region; similarly, Cabanas might not survive among peasants elsewhere.

Perhaps Guatemala offers the classic case of a disintegrating guerrilla movement. The Rebel Armed Forces (FAR) began operating in the state of Zacapa in the mid-sixties. Eventually, the Army launched a bloody and indiscriminate campaign against the guerrillas which resulted in the loss of many innocent peasant lives.

The surviving guerrillas then took refuge and reorganized themselves in Guatemala City. Between 1968 and 1970, they made enormous impact through a series of spectacular kidnapings and assassinations, not least those of U.S. Ambassador John Gordon Mein and West German Ambassador Karl von Spreti.

Then, in March 1970, a rightwing army officer, Colonel (now General) Carlos Arana, was elected president on a "law-and-order" ticket. By the time he took office in July, a new offensive against the guerrillas was prepared. When the guerrillas decided to challenge the government that autumn, they sparked off a massive and brutal campaign against all opponents of the regime. During 1971, over 1,000 alleged Communist guerrillas— although many were clearly innocent—were killed, often shot down in the street by a right-wing paramilitary group. Now, the few remaining guerrillas have escaped to the mountainous jungles of the north where, from a security point of view, they are harmless.

Three Injured As Freak Wave Strikes Coast

ILLWACO, Wash. (UPI) —A "freak wave" roared ashore from the Pacific Sunday, injuring three persons when it engulfed 44 people and 11 cars, the Coast Guard said.

The wave, of unknown origin, was followed by two smaller waves. It swept ashore near Cape Disappointment at the mouth of the Columbia River.

The wave left five feet of water covering a parking lot on the north jetty at the river's mouth.

Three girls were killed about the same time Saturday afternoon when they were struck by logs tossed by heavy surf north of here near Grays Harbor, Wash. The girls, who were playing on beaches 50 miles apart, were identified as Margaret Woreley, 8, Port Orchard, and Kathy Eeader and Becky Smith, both 14 from Bremerton.

Bar Firebombing Injures Couple

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) —Patrons were crowded around the bar having a Saturday night drink at "The Mug" when the front window shattered and a "blinding whoosh" sent the customers scurrying.

All the patrons except one couple made it out in time to escape injury when the home-made firebomb exploded. Vincent McMorrow, 52, and his wife, Leona, 49, Redwood City, were pulled from the flaming structure by firemen and rushed to Stanford University Medical Center where they were reported in critical condition Sunday night.

San Mateo County Sheriff's deputies arrested Francis Leroy Thornton, 39, Sunday and charged him with attempted murder and arson. They gave no motive for the act.

Thousands Dazzled By Christmas Story

By ROBERT STRAND

EL CERRITO (UPI) —This season, as for the last two decades, 25,000 people will journey by car, chartered bus and bicycle to view the dazzling holiday gift to the public of Sundar S. Shadi, a Sikh who delights in pleasing Christians.

For splendor and painstaking work, his home display probably has no rival among all the Americans who decorate their yards to awe the sightseers.

Scattered over a hillside acre adjacent to Shadi's house are 65 life-sized sheep and lambs, a caravan of 15 camels, an angel announcing the news to the shepherds, the Three Wise Men, 125 homes, and a manger scene, all topped by a huge star, in a display called "Little Town of Bethlehem."

"I started it 25 years ago because I thought it would be a nice thing to do, that people would enjoy it," he says.

"When you see all those buses, all those children, you feel fine inside thinking of your contribution to the community," he says. "You are glad to do it."

Born in the Punjab before birth records were kept, Shadi believes he is 72. He came to the United States in 1921 to take degrees in horticulture at the University of California.

But as an Indian, Shadi then was not eligible for U.S. citizenship. He was distained as a foreigner, and could only get jobs at manual labor. In 1937, when he built his own house, he was harassed by racially prejudiced neighbors.

Shadi, who now is long retired, fashions his own sheep and wise men out of plaster of paris. His wife, Dorothy, a Spanish professor at the university, makes the figures' clothing.

In summer, Shadi plants 6,000 annuals in displays which might be envied by some botanical gardens. Last summer's display was in the pattern of three Oriental rugs, with a few models of deer and flamingoes thrown in.

"I am not a Christian," says Shadi. "I am a Sikh, but I believe Christianity is a wonderful religion."

Last Christmas, for the first time, five of his best sheep and lambs were stolen in the night, and Shadi fears it may happen again this season.

"But as long as I have the strength and health, I will be glad to continue my displays," he says. "When I see other people enjoying it, I am happy."

Art Exhibit Set

An art exhibit which will include portraits, landscapes and still life works by Jean Vazzaro of Fairfax will be on display at Rubini's Restaurant, 10 Olema Drive in Fairfax, starting Friday.

END OF THE LINE — Authorities inspect the car in which kidnaper Richard Lee Driskill, 22, was killed by a Corona police sharp-shooter yesterday after kidnaping Debbie Brazil in Hughson and leading police in a 400-mile chase at speeds up to 100 miles an hour. Driskill was picked off while still holding the girl, who was unhurt.

Marksman's Bullet Brings End To Wild Chase After Kidnaper

CORONA, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Lee Driskill, 22, who led police on a 400 mile chase at speeds up to 100 mph through central and Southern California and held a terrified teen-age girl hostage, was killed Sunday by a marksman as he tried to talk his way out of a ring of police cars.

The hostage, Debra Brazil, 16, was rescued unharmed.

Driskill was shot to death as he held the girl at gunpoint in an orange grove. He was shot by a construction supervisor, Richard A. Godfrey, 41, a reserve policeman in Corona. Godfrey, a ruddy-faced sharpshooter, picked Driskill off using a telescopic sights on his high powered rifle firing through the closed car window.

Miss Brazil, who had uttered no sound during the hours of confrontations between Driskill and police, was dragged from the car screaming hysterically.

Police said Debra was alone in her home at Hughson Saturday night when Driskill, armed with a pistol, broke in and tried to rape her. Her mother, Angela Brazil, arrived home with a male friend shortly after midnight, and Driskill ordered mother and daughter into the family car and drove off.

The friend called the sheriff's department.

Three hours later, Driskill ordered the older woman out of the car near Bakersfield.

A service station attendant called authorities and a cruising patrolman sighted the auto and flagged it down, but Driskill roared away again.

More patrol cars—20 to 30 cruisers—and a helicopter flew overhead, keeping the fleeing auto illuminated by powerful lights.

"No officer dared shoot or block off the car because of the possibility of an accident" officers said later.

Shortly before daybreak the convoy roared into Corona, about 40 miles southeast of Los Angeles, where Driskill was brought to a skidding halt by a police roadblock.

"You've got no place to go," Sgt. Edward Sampson warned Driskill through a loudspeaker. "Release the girl and no harm will come to you."

"I'll kill her," Driskill yelled back, holding a pistol to the girl's head.

For 20 minutes, Sampson pleaded with Driskill. Deputies crept up and slashed the car's rear tires, deflating them.

"Fill those tires with air and move those cars out of here," Driskill yelled, poking Miss Brazil's head with the pistol barrel.

The patrol cars began to move, as if allowing Driskill to drive on. Surrounded by police vehicles, he was allowed to drive a few blocks, to the site of another roadblock next to an orange grove.

Hidden in the grove was Godfrey, his powerful rifle at rest on a citrus tree, the muzzle only about 15 feet to the left of Driskill's head.

"When you get a clear shot, go ahead and shoot," Sampson ordered Godfrey.

Syria Says Israel In Attack Plan

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Syria accused Israel today of planning an attack on Egypt and Syria with the same pretext it used to justify the 1967 Six Day War.

A commentary on the state-run Damascus radio said Israel was trying to convince the world that Syria's defense of its territory was an attempt to drag the entire Middle East into a war which would threaten world peace.

The commentary came as Beirut and Cairo newspapers reported high tension on the Golan Heights between Syria and Israel and a flurry of diplomatic and military consultations among Egypt, Syria and Libya.

Israel barred tourists and unauthorized civilians from the occupied Golan Heights for the third consecutive day today as a precautionary measure in case of more fighting with Syria, Tel Aviv dispatches reported.

An Israeli military source said troops along the front reported all quiet, with a layer of fog covering the battle line and reducing visibility to zero.

"The next move is up to Syria," the Israeli source said, noting that the heights are routinely closed in times of tension.

"In 1967, Israel successfully made the world believe the Arabs were preparing an attack against it," Damascus radio said "Israel is taking the same attitude and is using the pretext to plan attacks on Egypt and Syria."

Speaking on the eve of the U.N. General Assembly debate of the Middle East crisis, the commentator said Israel knew it would be condemned by the United Nations for its attacks on Syria and Lebanon and for its continued occupation of Arab lands.

"Therefore Israel has hurriedly attempted this new technique to show Syria as the aggressor," he said. "But times have changed, and neither the Arabs nor the world believe (Israel's) contentions and propaganda depicting it as the victim."

Video Union Due Hearing

NEW YORK (UPI)—The union representing on-the-air newsmen and performers at CBS-TV will try Tuesday to get court approval for a walkout.

The union, the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA), ordered its members to honor picket lines set up by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) last week. But a New York judge issued a temporary injunction barring those CBS newsmen who have indvidual contracts with the network from obeying AFTRA's walkout order.

After the injunction was issued, AFTRA rescinded its walkout order for all its members and filed an appeal, set to be heard Tuesday.

Election Scheduled For South Koreans

Voters will choose 2,359 delegates to serve in the Conference for six years and government sources said they will elect a new president Dec. 23.

Brezhnev Arrives In Hungary With Kiss

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) —Leonid I. Brezhnev began a twice-postponed visit to Hungary today in high spirit.

The Secretary General of the Soviet Communist Party kissed a woman worker and joked with the diplomatic corps at Budapest's Ferihegy airport before launching into five days of talks with Hungarian leaders.

Government sources said their discussions would center on economic issues.

Hungary is seeking a commitment from the Soviet Union for long-term supply of raw materials for its booming industry.

The Soviets want to learn more about Hungary's New Economic Mechanism (NEM) — which has boosted free enterprise and filled Budapest's stores with western-made consumer products.

There was no evidence of differences during the airport arrival ceremony. And there was no announcement Brezhnev was coming to Hungary.

Brezhnev, 66, was given full head of state honors complete with 21 gun salute and jet fighters swooping low over the tarmac.

Janos Kadar, First Secretary of the Hungarian Communist Party, President Pal Losonczi and Premier Jeno Fock, backed by workers and school children gave Brezhnev a warm welcome.

When one woman worker asked for a kiss, the Soviet leader gallantly obliged.

Introduced to the American ambassador, Alfred Puhan, Brezhnev took a step back, looked him in the eye and asked, "Are you in a good mood, too?"

Kept waiting in the crisp morning sunshine for his motorcade, Brezhnev turned to newsmen and said jokingly in Russian, " Well, we are here."

Tofael, in an interview with Bangladesh Press International published Saturday, said those killed included the League leaders, workers and volunteers. The political secretary said despite provocations, Awami League did not retaliate.

Indians Have New Senate Champion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James Abourezk, a newly-elected Senator who was born and reared on a Sioux reservation in South Dakota, has suggested that Indians be allowed to run the government's Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), the recent target of Indian hostilities.

Abourezk, a Democrat, told UPI that the six-day siege at the BIA which caused an estimated $2 million damage showed "there is something very seriously wrong with the way we've handled Indians affairs and that there ought to be something different done."

In a separate interview, Peter MacDonald, Chairman of the Navajo Nation, said the occupation and destruction of the BIA building in Washington demonstrated the extensive "despair and frustration" felt by Indians throughout America.

Abourezk, whose Lebanese father ran a trading post on the Rosebud reservation where he was born, said the government must stop trying "to wrench them (the Indians) away, pull them away from their culture."

One solution, he said, would be to remove the BIA from the control of the Interior Department. "There ought to be some system of electing Indian people by the Indian people themselves so that they can run as a commission or board, they can run the Bureau of Indian Affairs."

This is needed, he added, because all the government agencies and institutions from the presidency down to the BIA have failed in their stewardships of the Indian people.

School, Property Tax Bill Facing Final Showdown

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $1.1 billion school finance and property tax relief bill faces its final showdown this week as the lame duck 1972 state Legislature heads for final adjournment.

Although the tax shift sponsored by Republican Gov. Reagan and Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti is the center of attention, about 300 other measures also face final action before Friday's scheduled adjournment.

They include major conservation, insurance and industrial safety proposals.

Last week the tax bill was sent back to the Senate floor, where on Nov. 9 it fell two votes short of the two-thirds majority needed for final passage. Following announcement of amendments by a two-house conference committee, one senator switched sides leaving it just one vote short, and backers say other foes are wavering.

The Assembly — which already approved the plan with seven votes to spare — also must approve the amendments, bug backers say they have no worries in the lower house.

The tax bill now contains $332 million in new state funds for local schools — which would be the biggest one-tie increase ever granted in California. It also provides enough property tax relief to cut the average homeowner's tax bill by an estimated $128 a year.

But it proposes a controversial increase in the state sales tax and restrictive tax limitations on local government. Senate foes object to both those elements. They also say it doesn't give renters enough relief or go far enough to erase inequities between California's rich and poor school districts.

Here are some of the other major bills still pending:

SCHOOLS-TAXES — The $1.1 billion Reagan-Moretti plan, SB 90, faces final votes — probably early in the week — on both the Senate and Assembly floors.

A rival Senate-passed $575 million school finance bill, AB 1283, is pending on the Assembly floor. It is financed by federal revenue sharing and state budget surplus funds, and makes no major overhaul of the tax structure.

MAMMOTH — Two bills are pending to respond to last month's California Supreme Court ruing in the Friends of Mammoth case. The court ruled environmental impact reports are required on all private as well as public developments.

Construction, labor and banking interests say the requirement for environmental impact reports could cause chaos in the construction industry. They support a bill before the Senate Finance Committee which would impose a 120-day moratorium on the decision. Conservationists back a temporary guidelines bill pending before the Senate Local Government Committee.

WILD RIVERS — A bill by Republican Sen. Peter Behr of San Rafael to ban new dams on California's last free-flowing North Coast rivers finally passed the Assembly last week. It still needs Senate concurrence in amendments before it can be sent to Reagan's desk. A similar measure by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, is awaiting Assembly floor action.

NO-FAULT — The last remaining no-fault auto insurance proposal of the year is before the Senate Finance Committee, where it has been bottled up since July. Because no hearing is scheduled and only five days are left in the session, legislative observers consider its chances of passage slight.

INDUSTRIAL SAFETY — An Assembly-passed tunnel safety bill — spurred by the 1971 Sylmar Tunnel blast in which 17 men died — is on the Senate floor. A related bill to reorganize the State Division of Industrial Safety is still bottled up in Senate Finance Committee.

The bodies were recovered by the Presidio Fire Department and the Coast Guard.

School, Council Redevelopment Meeting Set

The San Rafael City Council and the San Rafael Board of Education will meet in joint session at 7 p.m. today in city hall to discuss the means by which to ease the financial impact of redevelopment on the school system.

The council has offered to return to the school system tax revenues resulting from increases in assessed valuation of up to 4 per cent in the redevelopment area. The board has proposed that a flat 4 per cent be returned, regardless of actual increase in assessed valuation.

The board's counter-proposal also suggests the council make substantial changes in the redevelopment plan and procedure.

School Board Gives Away Authority

Those of us who attend meetings of governmental agencies are accustomed to some inconsistencies in the attention given spending. Often a board or council will take half an hour arguing over an outlay of a few hundred dollars, then approve a major expenditure without discussion.

However, all expenditures except payroll, utility bills and a few other fixed charges must be approved in advance by the board or council, which thus performs its function of guarding the public purse — except in school districts.

School boards, in many cases, have largely abrogated this responsibility, turning it over to their superintendents.

SUCH ABROGATION led to the recent flap over expenditure of $5,700 to refurbish and refurnish the office of Lawrence Sheppard, Tamalpais High School's "educational leader." The matter went before the board — after the money was spent — only because it was necessary to transfer the funds from the reserve account.

District administrators tried to make it appear that such spending without any call for bids or even advance formal approval was routine. This rather startled us, as we envisioned the district's reserve fund vanishing without a chance to do anything about it. So we did a little checking.

It appears that such a completely uncontrolled spending practice my be of the very recent origin — or may be selective.

FOR EXAMPLE last March 20, the Tamalpais board authorized spending $5,200 for a stove hood and fan for the Tamalpais High School kitchen and $125 for minor changes in Tam High's student center — smaller outlays than that for the "educational leader's" office. The authorization, we are told, came in advance.

On March 6, an expenditure of $350 for a redesigned door at that same student center went before the board for advance approval. On Feb. 23, the board was called on to allocate $3,800 for improved heating and installation of venetian blinds at Redwood High School, $3,530 for furniture for the student center at Drake High, and $4,800 to fence Drake's football field — all smaller outlays than that for "educational leader" Sheppard's office.

It would appear that either: (a) a new policy has come into being in the last few months, under which the money is spent first and approval asked afterward, or (b) advance approval is required for expenditures that affect the students but not for those that benefit only the administrators.

Neither of these appeals to us.

SCHOOL BOARDS have permitted their power to be shorn away by the legislature and the teacher unions until about the only authority they have left is over expenditures. If they give that up, what good are they?

We are reminded, also, that one of the complaints which led to the ouster of the Tam district's former superintendent, Chester G. Carlisle, was over his having his office recarpeted without advance board approval.

It appears that what was impermissible for a superintendent in 1969 is permissible for an "educational leader" in 1972.

Aquarius Arrives

Those who seek earthly manifestations of the arrival of the Age of Aquarius in Marin have not been disappointed this year. Surely, the Water-bearer must have had a hand in pouring eight inches of rainfall on our county before Oct. 20. The Greening of Marin is accomplished. At least, that's the agricultural interpretation.

Larkspur Ferry Attack Sinks In Misinformation

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A belated campaign by a few citizens to move the Larkspur ferry terminal to Point San Quentin appears determined to hang itself on a lack of candor.

It is especially fond of claiming "new information" in the environmental statement written by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, which granted $16 million toward the ferry system. Most of the statement, however, was drawn word for word from a draft publicly reported 12 months ago by the Golden Gate Bridge District.

These campaigners apparently failed to read the final report through to its findings that the San Quentin site was "totally unacceptable from the standpoint of transit planning criteria," that the Larkspur site "emerged as the clearly superior site," and that the Larkspur site "required less dredging and less destruction of marshland than any other site.

"In short," the federal statement declared, "selection of the Larkspur site was the result of lengthy and thorough study. Because of its clear superiority, on both environmental and transit planning grounds, the property was acquired by the district to insure its continued availability."

JOI LOSEE of Larkspur, leader of the campaign, claimed incorrectly in a letter to the editor last Monday that "there are deep water channels available for ferries on San Quentin Point which require no dredging." The water off the point generally is only three feet deep at mean lower low water, somewhat shallow for a ferry requiring a 12-foot channel.

The fact is that a Point San Quentin terminal still would require dredging roughly three-quarters of a mile out to deep water.

She also has claimed that periodic maintenance dredging of some 400,000 cubic yards of mud would cost from $4 million to $8 million, a highly inflated figure. While it probably is true you can't move bay mud anymore for 50 to 75 cents a yard, it certainly hasn't gone up to $10. Even $1.50 would be high.

Finally, she buys without question Gov. Ronald Reagan's hope that the prison will be closed by the end of 1974. Legislative analyst A. Alan Post, however, figures that at best it still will be in business through 1976.

She guessed that a master plan for the point "probably will result in a state park that would be compatible with a ferry terminal," but that is just her guess. Anyway, the plan is not due until June 30, 1974.

HER SUGGESTION that the ferryboats, already under construction and due for delivery by mid-1974, be used instead at Sausalito ignores that city's continued inability to agree with the bridge district on reasonable terms for a terminal. The present float cannot accommodate the new ferries.

District officials look a little hurt when they think of the remote prison site for a terminal. "We've got a beautiful boat, why hide it?" they say. They reason that the ferry service will be far more successful "if we go to the people, and not make them come to us."

Some people just can't abide logic.

"I am familiar with price controls, consumer protection, and have a realistic ho-ho-ho."

"Working conditions for us Tam District administrators would be intolerable without this kind of support."

Planning Group's Authority Questioned

As an owner of property located in Bolinas I was attracted to and then mystified by Pat Angle's "Bolinas Wants Limited Growth" article printed Nov. 18 in that this was my first introduction to the Bolinas Planning Group. This group apparently conducted a survey of approximately 500 ("more than half own their own homes") of the community's 1,200 residents for the purposes of forming a master plan. The many proposals fostered by the survey taken by this group read vaguely like an "Our Town" concept. This image was further established on Nov. 20 when I read in the I-J that the group wished to preserve Bolinas as a "community of people who know each other and can make genuine contact with their neighbors". No others need apply?

If the Bolinas Planning Group wishes to create a master plan to solely benefit a special group, it is suggested they first buy up all the land they wish to exercise control over.

Reasons Why Bomb Won't Be Dropped

The threat of nuclear warfare, the descent of H-bombs on Washington and Moscow, New York and Leningrad, is a condition we could well live without, though we are living with it. No one really believes such a holocaust is going to occur, and neither do I . . .

First, the leaders governmental, military and financial might well suffer death, they and their families — and even if they are courageous enough to support the possibility, they know they are needed to stay alive and carry on their leadership as devoted men, whatever devotion to what they believe in and wish to perpetuate.

Second, bombs on Washington and Moscow alone could be utterly destructive to the remainder of the U.S. and the USSR. All communication from these nerve centers would cease and universal panic (people in search of leadership) would spread in disruption of contiguous social and industrial life and services.

And third, it is now well through everybody's universal noggin that nobody would gain a victory over anybody for any good reason, while indescribable confusion reigned (and rained) on the planet . . .

There is one fearsome point left: somebody could make a mistake. Which is all the more reason why the bomb won't be dropped, but scrapped internationally. But wait, one more point has to be made — where will they be scrapped? In underground caves, or in the deeps of the seas? . . .

The scientists will have to solve this one, and they will do so soon . . .

Fluoridation Foes Thanked For Votes

Our committee would like to express its thanks to the 34,901 concerned citizens who investigated the facts and voted against fluoridation in the recent election. We are pleased to note the increasing number of professional persons, physicians and dentists who are now expressing concern over the calculated risks to health and the complications of illness due to artificial fluoridation.

We have been interested to hear from so many sincerely concerned parents who in the past have faithfully given their children vitamin drops with fluoride and fluoride pills who now realize that they are obliged to give up that specific daily dose for the hit and miss method of public water fluoridation.

We are thankful for the many calls from citizens who never dreamed fluoridation would pass in Marin and now wish to help.

Now that the political heat has passed away from the issue following the balloting, we look forward to continued and increasing unencumbered scientific discussion and exposure of the medical and ecology literature detailing the toxic side effects to our fellow citizens, and upon our environment, from the artificial fluoridation of our public water supply.

Somebody Doesn't Know What Day It Is

Having just returned from a vacation, my newsboy gave me a shopping bag full of my newspapers from the preceding weeks. Being Thanksgiving Day, and having time before dinner, I sat down to read the "old" news.

Looks like "gremlins" have been at work at the I-J, as noting the enclosed mast head which bears the legend of Nov. 20, 1972, while the date was actually Nov. 13, 1972, as noted on page two. Then again, in the third section, Nov. 20, on page 17, and on page 18, Nov. 13, once again. . .

Unwanted Pregnancies And Value Of Life

In concurrence with Beverly Tait (I-J, Nov. 23) I, too, am dismayed that 116,749 women had unwanted pregnancies in California during 1971 for whatever reason. However, unlike Mrs. Tait, I am deeply chagrined that our society and laws have neither provided supportive situations for these women nor directed themselves to the underlying problems; but have encouraged and allowed them to deal irresponsiby with their predicament by destroying human life.

For over 2,000 years a core value of our western civilization has been a belief in the absolute value of each human life. The only exceptions have been that of balancing a life for a life in certain situations or by due process of law.

Is this respect for human life to be replaced by a new ethic where we destroy the "unwanted," the potentially battered, the defective? Can we guarantee anyone that they may not some day fall into one of these categories?

Sen. Eagleton Seen As Possible Choice For Democratic Chairman

Eagleton for Democratic chairman! Friends of the Missouri senator, whom McGovern dropped as his running-mate, are quietly urging that he succeed Mrs. Jean Westwood as head of the Democratic National Committee.

They argue that he could do more than many others to unify the party. He was loyal to McGovern and his people after he was dumped. The disaffected Democratic leaders like him and he is today one of the best known and popular Democrats in the country.

Eagleton would have to divide his time between the Senate and running the national committee. But so does the Republican chairman, Sen. Robert Dole.

BRANDT AND NIXON—STRENGTHENED ALLIES. The Nixon administration warmly welcomes the decisive reelection of the Willy Brandt government in West Germany.

They have much in common. Both seek real detente with Moscow. While Mr. Nixon was negotiating the beginning nuclear arms agreements with the Russians, Brandt was removing longstanding irritations with Russia and Poland.

Both are tough when the Communists are tough. Both want negotiation, not confrontation. Both want a stronger and more united Western Europe.

THE PENS ARE READY IN PARIS. U.S. officials expect little difficulty clearing up final points in the Vietnam peace settlement. Both sides want to end it as soon as possible and Saigon's ultimate acceptance now seems assured. The communists figured they could pressure the President during the last stages of the U.S. campaign. They were wrong.

Who was wrong on the Vietnam outcome? At one time or another, nearly everybody. But the false predictions of the critics are now visible for all to see.

The critics called the 1968 Tet offensive a decisive Hanoi victory. It was a crippling setback for Hanoi.

The critics predicted the downfall of the Saigon government in six weeks.

The critics said the renewed bombing of the north and mining the harbors would be useless. But they helped bring the fighting to an end.

The critics were certain that these acts would cause Moscow to call off the summit.

The critics said the south was certain to lose and the north certain to win.

The critics said a negotiated settlement would never be attained by President Nixon.

It would be unwise to hold your breath waiting for confessions of error.

MORE PRIMITIVE PARKS. The federal government is planning to double the national park system. In Alask alone, new parkland about equal to Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware will be set aside. The stress will be to keep them "primitive" — plenty of hiking, but fewer cars and hot-dog stands.

"LET THE SELLER BEWARE!" That's the warning the Federal Trade Commission is giving to advertisers. It is cracking down harder on such false and exaggerated claims as that some bread will reduce your weight, that sugar foods are dietetic, that certain fruit juices are more nutritious than others.

The FTC's most effective weapon in behalf of truth in advertising is to compel "corrective advertising" admitting past misstatements.

Laird Recognizes Value In Adversary Relationship

WASHINGTON — Mel Laird held a ceremony at the Pentagon last week that took me back seven years, to a negligible knoll among the paddies west of Binh Son, in southern Quang Tri province, South Vietnam.

It was early in the American buildup. The Marines had been in only one major battle up to then. Looking for another, they were sending strong patrols through enemy territory back from the South China Sea. This one, part of Operation Black Ferret, had hit only scattered signs of the departing Viet Cong. We dug in on the knoll, while the monsoon drizzled and circling planes dropped flares to light our perimeter through the night. In the morning, the Marines moved out again.

WITHIN LESS than a minute, there was an explosion that sent us all to the deck. A marine had tripped the hidden catgut leading to a mortar round rigged as a mine. Two marines were wounded slightly. Dickey Chapelle, a woman correspondent who had been in and out of three wars, was killed by a chunk of steel through her throat.

After a helicopter evacuated her body with the wounded back to Chu Lai, I took her campaign hat back with her other belongings. Pinned to it was a sprig of pink flowers she had picked just before starting down the knoll that morning.

You remember such details of a colleague's death within arm's reach. Without having been there, you can envision its happening to other friends because you knew them so well:

George Syvertsen of CBS, always the calm and professional voice in the night when he was with the AP in Moscow, heading down an unknown road in Cambodia with his wire service reporter's insistence on being where the story is. Larry Burrows of Life, going back and back again to Vietnam until that one time too many. Along with them, more than a dozen other American newsmen have been killed in the Indochina war. Many more, like Ron Nessen of NBC and Ward Just of the Washington Post, were wounded and came extremely close. In Korea, eight American reporters died in action; in World War II, 36 others.

IT WAS TO THEM, the whole group, that Secretary Laird dedicated a long hall of the Pentagon. He dubbed it Correspondents' Corridor, and had it decorated with paintings and photographs of newsmen in action, including a portrait of that model columnist, Ernie Pyle, at his typewriter. He also named the workroom where Pentagon reporters grind out their daily thousand. It is now the Mark Watson Press Room, for the late Baltimore Sun correspondent who for many years was dean and conscience of the military press corps.

Laird accompanied the dedication with some pro forma words of approval for the adversary relationship between press and government. "We need not apologize" for it, he said. "Instead we should praise it and preserve it. And as we go about our constitutional business of being adversaries, we should avoid becoming antagonists." True words, though normally as appropriate for the dedication of a new Social Security annex as for a war correspondents' memorial.

This, however, is not a nomral time in press-government relations. It is toward the end of American involvement in a long and nasty war that has strained those relations more than ever before. Laird did not allude to this part, and did not need to.

For his audience of mostly newsmen and military officers, he did not need to elaborate either on the fact that a sizable percentage of the newsmen killed or wounded or still risking their lives in Vietnam have been opposed in varying degrees to that war. It was a sophisticated audience, more so than the incredulous young troopers who ask combat correspondents approximately once a day in the field, "What do you guys do this for if you don't have to? You must be crazy."

Laird is among the most sophisticated of us all, and he let his listeners fill in around his pro forma words. But just in case they are read beyond his immediate circle, as far away as the White House, the vice president's office across the alley and elsewhere, he might consider adding a footnote of explanation. It might be of service during the coming four years in parts of this administration where "our constitutional business of being adversaries" has long ago deteriorated into antagonism.

College's 'Committee System' Faces Antother Inquiry In '74

Like all California community colleges, the College of Marin has to be re-accredited every four years. Its next time is 1974, and an accreditation team will descend on the Kentfield campus in October of next year.

The team will look at all aspects of the college; everyone on campus has been warned, and there will undoubtedly be all kinds of moonshine in the weeks beforehand.

But the evaluation team of the Accreditation Commission for Junior Colleges will look most closely at something that can't be seen: the college's system of government by committee and the astonishing extend of faculty power.

THAT'S WHAT the evaluation team didn't like about College of Marin in its 1969 visit. "A heavy emphasis at the College of Marin seems to be placed upon a committee-structured form of decision making in instructional matters," complained Harry D. Wiser, executive director of the commission. He added that the system was not only inefficient, it gave faculty too much responsibility, leaving the college president with "rubber-stamp approval."

The college was re-accredited for the 1970 through 1974 period, but at the same time was ordered to file a progress report by the end of November, 1972, on five areas of concern: the committee system; faculty power; the fact that there's no system of evaluating teachers or instruction; the absence of training programs for teachers; and the college's sub-standard library.

(Incidentally, don't think you've forgotten all about these criticisms. The critique wasn't made public at the time it was sent to the college in October, 1970.)

AT LAST WEEK'S Marin Community College District board meeting, Supt.-President John A. Grasham gave trustees a draft of an answer to the criticisms.

Very much boiled down, the response states that the committee system has been streamlined, and that while it's sometimes inefficient because it's so slow, it "maximizes campus input."

Grasham admits that "faculty members continue to seek ways of maximizing their influence on decision-making" but says it's no threat to his position.

On the question of evaluating faculty, Grasham says each probationary instructor was evaluated last year, and under a new board policy, some of the faculty will be evaluated. (The "some" is probationary instructors, many of the part-timers, and about half the permanent teaching staff)

IT'S EXTRAORDINARILY difficult for the non-involved to understand the committee system at College of Marin. There are six committees which report to the college cabinet alone, and they have a lot of power.

But it doesn't take much to observe that it's an incredibly slow system. For instance, the board has been waiting for months for a policy on district travel. At each meeting trustees are told the proposed policy isn't yet ready - it's still wending its tortuous way through the committee system.

Similarly, trustee Francis Compton asked at the Nov. 2 board meeting for statistics on "overloading" (that's when full-time faculty teach more than their 15-unit class-load). The statistics weren't produced at last week's meeting. Judging from past performances, Mrs. Compton won't hear those statistics for three or four onths.

Children Keep Getting Older —And The Adults, Younger

The United States, as everybody knows, is divided into two political parties — and no, these parties are not called Republicans and Democrats. The real two-party sytem is known as Children and Adults.

The party lines work out a bit vaguely, since Adults classify anyone under 30 as a child, while Children classify anyone over 18 as an Adult.

The in-between people, of course, are dismissed by both parties as Adolescents. Neither Adults nor Children trust Adolescents, but the Adolescents do act as a buffer zone. Besides, every two-party system needs a third party to kick around.

LIKE ALL POLITICS, generational politics is based upon certain myths. These myths, in fact, haven't changed for 50 to 75 years, yet nobody in either party appears to have noticed.

The chief myth of the Children is that they are innocent, hapless victims of a police state known as the family which is crushing their psyches under hobnailed boots labeled "Because-I-Say-So."

A recent Jules Feiffer cartoon classically dramatized the campaign posture of the Children Party. A fist-clenched little girl in what looks like a fringed jacket is shown, carrying on a defiant monologue with herself (and with the sinister Them):

"I ask them: 'How come I have to eat food that I hate?'

"And they say: 'It's good for you.'

"I ask them: 'How come I have to go to school that I hate?'

"And they say: 'It's good for you.'

"I ask them: 'How come I have to belong to clubs that I hate?'

"And they say: 'It's good for you.'

"I ask them: 'How come you smoke and drink and watch TV all night?'

"And they say: 'Our unhappy childhoods.' "

BRILLIANT! But is the Feiffer legend really true? To be quite literal, how many 1972 children eat what they don't want to? How many join clubs they detest? As for schools, how did Mr. Feiffer ever manage to get out of range of the ubiquitous PTA chorus, "Let's make learning fun?"

Equal time now must be granted the Adult opposition, whose myth is that Adults are tolerant, loving people being pushed around by the toughest junior militants since the Children's Crusade. ("All the thanks you get. . ." and so on.)

The campaign literature of Adults may be sampled in a recent column by Ann Landers. A desperate mother wrote to Ann for help. Her child, it seems, finished the strawberries in her own shortcake, then asked for Mommy's. Mommy loved her child, but she loved her strawberries, too. What was she to do?

Ann hard-lined it: Eat your strawberries, Mom. Nobody's entitled to second helpings of other people's first helpings.

WHICH MYTH is right, that of the Adult Party or the Children Party? Is the country going to the dogs because of overage despots or underage barbarians? People — adults, children, even adolescents — tend to assume that one or the other partisan explanation must be true.

The fact is, things are happening that fit neither myth — indeed, that deny both.

For example: One of the generational-politics cliches is that Children are fanciful creatures with gossamer imaginations — Peter Pans brought down to earth by Adults (the clods!) harping upon "facts" and "pragmatism."

But if one goes by reading tastes — a sound indicator — children are probably consuming more "factual," more "real" books than ever before. Children's literature, even children's TV — to say nothing of ever-more-relevant schools — are chock full of "problem-solving" material about race relations, drugs and so forth.

Meanwhile, adults are flying with "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" and tuning in on the ghost stories and ESP fantasies that now qualify for prime time on TV.

Every year children seem to get older and adults seem to get younger —or at least try to. And none of this fits the ancient myths.

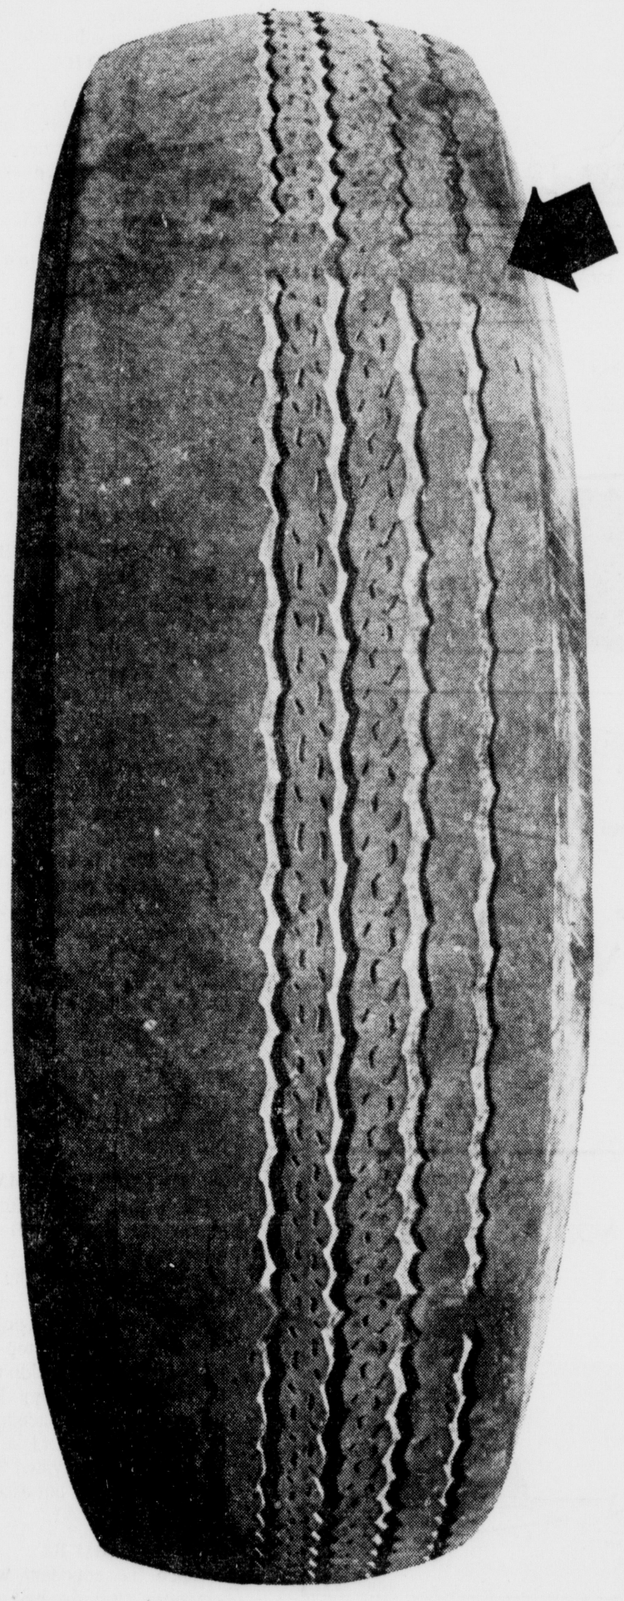

Perhaps the time has come to realign the parties to conform to the facts: Children as precociously worldly New Mathmen, Adults as recycled Peter Pans.

Who knows? Perhaps the time has come to give up generational politics altogether.

TWO SECONDS TO LIVE, or SLICK TIRES ON WET ROADS

When you're driving on slick tires on a wet road you're in a menacingly dangerous condition that greatly reduces the control you have of your car.

When slick tires meet road water they hydroplane, the same way a waterski scoots across the water's surface. When you attempt to change lanes or make a turn and these conditions prevail, you may feel that sickening moment when you are not in control and your car is taking you to your death.

Your tires don't have to be baby-skin smooth, either. The arrow on the tire to the left shows the dangerous, tread-wear bar that might be the last warning you get that your tires should be replaced.

Reduce the danger of driving on wet roads by having enough tread on your tires to grip a wet road and by traveling at reduced speeds. Drive easily, don't make any sharp turns or abrupt stops, or accelerate too rapidly. Follow these tips and you will greatly increase your control, when you need it most.

Planning To Play A Slam? You'll Have To Take Risks

A friend has written to inform me that the millennium will not arrive until Jan. 1, 2001 — one year later than I had promised in this column. So you'll still have a long wait until the day when you can play a slam without taking any risks at all. While you're waiting, see if you can follow South's reasoning in today's hand.

Opening lead — ♠ 6

DISCARDED CLUB

West opened the six of spades, and East took the ace. East returned a spade, and South discarded the low club.

South planned to set up dummy's clubs to get rid of his losing heart, but there was no hurry. The first step was to draw two rounds of trumps with the queen and king. If trumps broke 2-2, the rest would be easy.

When West discarded a spade on the second round of trumps, South was tempted to draw a third trump. However, South looked ahead.

What if clubs broke 4-1? South saw that he would have to take the top clubs, enter dummy to ruff a club, enter dummy a second time to ruff another club and get back to dummy a third time to cash the last club.

ENTRIES TO DUMMY

South then looked for three entries to dummy. He could enter dummy twice with top hearts and once with the jack of diamonds. All three of those entries could be used only after he had cashed both top clubs.

In short, South couldn't afford to draw the last trump. First he had to lead out the ace and king of clubs. This would be safe if the clubs were divided 3-2; and it would be risky but essential if the clubs were 4-1.

GOT BY

Since the opponent with the singleton club also had a singleton trump, declarer got by safely with his top clubs. He next led a trump to the jack, ruffed a club, led a heart to the king and ruffed another club. Finally he led a heart to the ace and cashed the last club. Off went the losing heart, and the slam was safe.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens the bidding with 3-NT, and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ - 8
♥ - 6 4 2
♦ - A K 10 9 8 3
♣ - A K 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 7-NT. Partner's bid shows 25 to 27 points, and you have 14 points in high cards. There are only 40 points in the entire deck, so the opponents have only 1 point at most. Even if partner has stretched a point or two in making his bid, your long diamonds should provide enough tricks.

BUCKELEW FARMS

Transition To New Life Made

By JOAN LISETOR

At Buckelew Farms in Kentfield Lesley is learning how to adjust to life after spending two years in a mental hospital.

Lesley is one of six young adults living in the spacious house nestled in the trees above Marin General Hospital. All have been through a psychotic breakdown and are reorganizing themselves after a period of mental disorder, according to Eliot M. Henderson, executive director of Buckelew Farms.

Six months is the average stay for residents, who are required to pursue a daytime activity, such as schools, a job or psychiatric counseling, while they are part of the group living situation.

BUCKELEW FARMS began in March 1971 as a halfway house for young women.

"There were six young women with minimal problems, supervised by house parents," Henderson said. "We eased into men because applications coming from men outnumbered women 2 to 1."

Henderson has been at Buckelew Farms since May, and in July the first man moved in. It no longer resembles an extended family but is a supervised, transitional living situation with a planned rehabilitation program, according to Henderson.

"At Buckelew we focus on capabilities and getting the residents out into the community rather than meeting all of their needs here," he said.

As each resident is accepted he draws up a contract listing the goals he plans to achieve while living at Buckelew Farms.

"We make sure the goals are reality oriented," explained program coordinator Melita Figueroa.

GOALS ARE coordinated with the residents' psychiatrist and family, and Melita sets up a rehabilitation program which takes into consideration his medical condition, behavioral patterns and psychological diagnosis and then sets up vocational or educational goals with him.

Buckelew Farms has no locked doors, constraints or lock-out hours, senior counselor Jack Cruz explained.

"Residents are required to be home for dinner and to attend house meetings twice a week," Cruz explained. "At the meetings problems in the house are aired, but we are not just involved on a verbal level. We are offering guidance in dealing with the outside world."

Buckelew Farms has a capacity for 11 residents. There are five vacancies because public funds are not available and few can afford the monthly fee of $595.

"We have 13 applicants in hospitals who could get out if we could take them," Henderson said.

Lesley attends daily therapy sessions at Ross Hospital Psychiatric Center. Her life since coming to Buckelew is better than it was in the hospital, she said, but she still gets very frightened and lonely.

STEVE, ANOTHER resident, said it is a good place to get himself back together. After four months he is wondering what the break will be like in a few months when he leaves.

"It is another step, like the one from the hospital to here," he said.

Responsibility for running the house is on the residents, and they plan and prepare dinner each night.

Of the 12 women who left Buckelew Farms in the first half of 1972, four have returned to their families, six are living independently and are employed and two have been transferred to more appropriate residential facilities, Henderson explained.

"We can't talk in terms of success unless we establish what success means," he said. "All I can say is, people who have gone through here have a better sense of self and certainly have a better sense of how to use themselves."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Short Directive To Relatives On Making It Easier To Die

DEAR HELEN:

I have written a legally witnessed directive to my next of kin and I'd like to share it with your readers. It states:

"Should I become incurably ill or senile to the point where prolonging my life has no validity, (i.e., my mind is gone, or my body in so much pain that I must be kept drugged) I hereby direct my closest living relative to let me die with dignity. No machines, drugs or extraordinary procedures will be used to keep me alive. If euthanasia is legal (as I hope it will be) at the time, my permission for mercy-death is hereby granted to attending doctors. This is written to relieve my kin from a decision which might otherwise bring them condemnation or guilt feelings."

Medical advancement can now keep a body alive long after it is of no use to its tenant. If there's no hope, no mentality, I don't want to linger on as a burden to my family, yet I have seen elderly "vegetables" or terminal cases forced to last far past "living."

I think a "right to die" note is as necessary as a will these days, when medical advances can turn dying into a long, ghastly wait. — THINKING AHEAD

DEAR T.A.:

We think alike!

When the mind is irrevocably gone, the body should be allowed to follow it. If lengthened life is merely prolonged death, then most definitely the machines (or whatever) should be turned off. Many doctors agree but can't act because the decision to stop life-sustaining procedures rests with relatives, who "don't want to feel like murderers." Your legal directive would make dying easier — for all concerned. It gets my vote. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I ran away and got married at 15. I'm 18 now, and hate myself even more than I hate my baby and my husband.

He is nine years older than me. I soon found out he was sleeping with every girl he could sweet talk. From the start he called me a dumb stupid kid who was no good for anything, but I couldn't go back home because everyone would say "I told you so!"

It got so bad he hadn't come near me for a month, and then he was gone for two days and I took a bunch of nerve pills, hoping I'd never wake up. But they just knocked me out. I vaguely remember him coming in the room. His "help" was to get me pregnant.

I resented the baby before it was born, and it's two years old now and I can't change. I scold it for things that shouldn't bother me. I'm so mean, I've made it mean. It hits people for no reason, and bites other kids. When I tell it to sit down, it screams and hits me, and spanking doesn't help. I'm afraid I'll do something terrible because I take out my feelings against my husband on his kid.

I don't want to be this way but I can't help myself. My husband doesn't stay home much and his talk is mostly swearing or complaining. I can't work because I'm too dumb and uneducated and I can't run away with a kid tagging along and I can't leave it anywhere because no one wants such a mean one.

Is there any way out except enough pills to finish me this time? — HOPELESS

DEAR HOPELESS:

Call the Child Welfare Department and ask for help — which might include a temporary foster home for your baby and a new environment, plus therapy, for you.

A mother whose resentment is so great that she thinks of her two-year-old only as "it" — a "thing" her husband forced on her — is a threat to herself and the child. You're wise enough to see this. Don't risk another day's delay in seeking professional aid, for all your sakes! — H.

$56,000 Is Allocated By Hospital Volunteers

Penny-Pinching Not Admissible During Your Grandmother's Day

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The young housewife may think she has discovered new "thrift tricks" only to learn that her grandmother practiced the same or similar economies in her day.

But there is one difference, a reader who describes herself as "a 59-year-old veteran of the kitchen range" points out.

"In my day," she wrote, "we were ashamed to admit to penny-pinching. People tended to ridicule the ultra-careful buyer. Spending was the 'in' thing. When you boasted how much you paid for things you were the object of envy.

"There has been a real turnabout these days. Young and old — particularly the young — are tickled to find real buys in usable items at get-rid-of-it sales in garages, basements or even the front yard. Today there is no shame in admitting one found an item at such a sale."

THIS LETTER from Mrs. A.A.N. of Chicago was in response to a recent Dollars and Sense column inviting readers to share any "thrift tricks" they may have devised as a means of combating inflation.

Another reader, Mrs. D.L.M. of Mearblehead, Mass., proves the point made by the Chicago housewife.

She patronizes thrift shops for her clothes and brags of the bargains. She lives 17 miles from the city in which she works because she wants to live by the sea. This boosts transportation costs.

So she decided she would have to make the necessary economy in clothes. Mrs. M. tells of two recent bargains — a very good knit dress "in wonderful condition" for $1 at a thrift shop in the town where she lives.

"When coats were high last winter, I went to a swap shop and found a brown, tailored wool coat for only $2. I also bought a black bengalina coat with small mink collar, also in good condition, for the same amount. That was really my day."

SHE EXPLAINS that these unusual bargains come from a church-related shop to which clothes are donated. In order to keep the stock moving "things are often sold at ridiculously low prices."

Used clothing is also sold at bargain prices at special shops that take items on consigment. Women who lead an active ocial life often have slightly worn gowns that they turn over to "nearly new" stores, as some are called, for sale at but a fraction of the original price.

Mrs. B.B.K. of Alexandria, Va., "saves a lot of money" by doing her own dry cleaning in do-it-yourself machines.

"For $2.50," she reported, "you can clean almost 8 pounds of clothing ... "I often do a coat and three or four dresses in one load. But be sure to be there when the machine turns off so you can take the clothes out before they become wrinkled.

"The cleaning process usually takes 50 minutes so you have time to do an errand or two meanwhile."

Mrs. K and her husband also have found out that it pays to belong to the local garden club because you can get bushes and bulbs at a discount. This helps to cut landscaping costs on the property.

AT A RUMMAGE sale, it is always interesting to hunt for something special.

One reader tells us she looks for old tablecloths. She has a special use for them.

She can get about eight towels out of one tablecloth, and the tablecloth usually costs around 25 cents.

"These dish towels beat the regular kind," she says. "They are great dryers. And sometimes you'll come across a real linen one."

Mrs. D. LeB of Kerman, has no worry about the high cost of bread.

She wrote, "My money-saving idea is my sister. She is an accomplished baker of bread. By using sourdough starter her only expense is flour which we stock up on when it is on sale.

"This bread does not keep well, but we are a family of eight so it never gets stale at our house anyway."

Mrs. R.H.D. of Indianapolis reports that "we have saved a lot by buying used furniture and refinishing it." Her latest purchase was a dining room set for $50, with cane-backed chairs and several extensions for the table.

Swedes Believe Christmas Bird Brings Good Luck

An old Swedish tradition says that a small bird in a gilded nest on your Christmas tree will bring health, happiness and good fortune in the new year.

To make your own, shape ordinary lawn grass in a muffin tin to form a rounded nest and saturate with white glue. Let the glue dry naturally or in a warm oven.

Remove the nest from the muffin tin and glue a spring type clothespin clip to the bottom of the nest. Let glue dry and spray nest and clothes pin with gold spray paint. When the paint is dry, attach a small bird, available at novelty shops and craft stores to the side of the nest with a piece of wire and place a jellybean egg in the nest.

Clip the nest to a branch of your Christmas tree.

SEWING NEWS
By Elisabeth Veith

PATTERN–MAKING NOW MADE EASIER THAN SEWING!

"My dresses always look home made" is now a lament of the past.

Heinz Bludau, internationally known author, lecturer and designer has created a basic system whereby anybody can now make perfect-fitting patterns simply by referring to the figures set out for her.

Mr. 'B', has travelled the world teaching his amazing method of pattern making.

He says, "there is no excuse for a woman to waste hours looking for a pattern, and then spend further hours altering it when she could be making her pattern from scratch in just 20 minutes."

"Everyone makes it so difficult. Why start with a pattern that is all wrong and try and correct it, when the logical procedure is to start with your individual fit!"

"Do you know that there are unlimited classes to help you sew better, but not one to help you make a perfect pattern quickly and without years of study?"

It took years, but Mr. Bludau has developed a foolproof way for everyone – even a rank beginner – to actually make professional patterns for any size.

And the absolute beauty of it is – it takes almost no learning!

To dunces like myself, who never made the grade in arithmetic, this perhaps is the whole beauty of this paper-pattern cutting system; you don't have to worry your pretty little head about figures at all, except the one you walk in.

More than that I am not going to divulge; on paper it would only read like a geometric problem. But I went to one of the demonstrations and, take it from me, it's as easy as falling off a log.

Normally you'd need about 15 measurements to achieve any sort of dress pattern. In this system you need two - bust and hips - and these only to give you starting points.

Why or how, he decided the bust and the hip would make the best starting point I do not know, especially when I discovered that these two measurements are taken at the broadest part of the anatomy involved. It merely added a bit of hilarity to the demonstration when the member of the audience who was acting as dressmaker's dummy was informed that her bust measured 110. Not hers to reason why; but only to follow slavishly.

"With my method you get a professional looking garment by starting with a perfect pattern," he says, "and that means a perfect pattern for YOU, not for everyone else that happens to have your bust size. And that alone cuts your sewing time in half."

He was born in Germany with a typical, analytical mind. At 24 he was owner, manager and director of a manufacturing plant. Ten years ago he moved to the U.S.A. to make his home here. He pilots his own plane and delights in stopping off in 'Gardens of Eden' all over the world.

He has always been greatly interested in the Fashion World, mainly the manufacturing end. Attending a fashion convention in his native Duesseldorf, he was struck by the fact that, although the garment industry had whole teams of efficiency experts perfecting faster, easier and better methods of production, almost no attempt was being made to help the millions of home dressmakers the World over.

Impulsively he threw himself into an intensive study of the situation, interviewing hundreds of home dressmakers to learn first-hand what problems they run into and what attempts had been made to solve them.

He was appalled to find how antiquated the methods were that supposedly helped people fit themselves.

"The problem is the "AVERAGE SIZE", there is no such thing. We are all individual with our own little figure quirks, and our patterns must be made to accommodate our bodies – not the other way around."

During the course of his lively and often hilarious lectures, he throws all the old theories to the winds.

It no longer matters what your size is, big – small – long – short, or a combination of them all.

"At first they're very skeptical," he says, "they think there must be some gimmick, that it's not possible, but when I take a volunteer from the audience, preferably someone with absolutely no sewing knowledge, and she actually makes a pattern out of a blank sheet of paper, for the very first time in her life, well, you can imagine ...

"You should hear them when the pattern is tried on and fits perfectly."

"Miraculously, and for reasons known only to mathematicians, the final answer is still– your own proportions worked out to scale.

During the course of it all, Mr. Bludau has written several books and to make sure the instructions are as straight forward and simple as he would like them, he has them tested by both school children and average home seamstresses. Only if they can be followed with only one reading is he satisfied.

Although he used to be a one-man team, and loved to pop off to parts unknown at the drop of a hat. He has found that he simply cannot get around fast enough to satisfy all the requests pouring in for his lectures from all over. So he's done the next best thing. When he lectures in foreign countries, he always leaves a trained team of experts behind. As he says: "After all, it's not me they need, it's my method and short cuts."

And I can't argue with that, especially after witnessing a completely unsuspecting member of his audience fit another member of that same audience by just following his instructions. And all of it done with not once biting her lip.

With the cost of living constantly on the rise, it's no wonder that women flock to attend his lectures. Not only do they learn to cut their own patterns, thereby making a great saving, but he also nonchalantly drops such gems as how to change the lines of a basic pattern by moving a dart or adding a side-panel.

And when I think of all that drawer and closet space I can now empty of all those patterns 'I always intended using one more time,' I say: "Thank you, Mr. 'B'."

Both Oldest Youngest World Authors Women

Both the oldest and the youngest authors in the world are women.

Mrs. Alice Pollock of Surrey, England, born July 2, 1868, was 102 years, 8 months when her book, "Portrait of My Victorian Youth," was published in March, 1971.

The youngest author, Janet Aitchison, was 5½ when she wrote "The Pirate's Tale" and 6½ when Penguin Books published it in England in 1969.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN — A technician adjusts the microphone of Alabama Gov. George Wallace before the taping of a news interview show in Miami Sunday during which Wallace said there's little chance he'll ever walk again but that he expects to be strong enough to run for president in 1976, if he wants to.

(UPI Telephoto)

Paralysis Won't Stop Wallace From Seeking Presidency Again

MIAMI (UPI) —Alabama Gov. George Wallace confirmed Sunday he probably will never be able to walk again, but said his paralysis would not be a factor in his possible candidacy for the presidency in 1976.

Wallace said he has not made any decision about running for President, but "I'm still interested in 1976. My doctors tell me I'm going to be physically able to do what I want to do by 1976 or even sooner."

Wallace, wounded last May in an assassination attempt at Laurel, Md., said he has not yet decided whether to seek reelection as governor of Alabama, but he indicated he would like to stay in office.

Wallace told a television news conference ("Meet the Press NBC-TV) he goes to his office and handles his duties as governor, although he is still in the recuperative stage following the shooting.

"I would be physically able to be politically involved from now on," he said. But he added, "I recognize there's not much chance I'll walk again. I'm paralyzed from the waist down."

Wallace said he is using an office opened by some of his supporters in Washington, along with his political contacts, to work for the replacement of Democratic National Chairman Jean Westwood and the reorganization of the party.

"The party must be reorganized from top to bottom," Wallace said. "If this party doesn't do what it ought to do, I would be through as a national Democrat."

He would not say if he would consider switching to the Republican party.

He said he might have considered a third party candidacy this year if he had not been wounded.

"I would've considered running, but the chances are I would not have," Wallace said. He said his acceptance and the Democratic convention had altered the conditions that led to his 1968 race under the banner of the American Independent party.

Wallace said a new party "might come into being" if the Democrats did not reorganize, but he said he had faith that the party would make the necessary changes.

Asked if he would accept Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts as leader of the Democratic party in 1976, Wallace said, "I would accept the leadership of anyone who feels as I do on the issues as put forth in my speech at the Democratic convention."

But in remarks after the taping of the news conference, Wallace said he did not think Kennedy could bring the average American citizen into the party.

Teams Of Doctors, Nurses Await 150 Prisoners Of War In Saigon

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

SAIGON (AP) — Medical evacuation helicopters and teams of doctors and nurses have been alerted to receive more than 150 American prisoners of war expected to be freed in South Vietnam by the Viet Cong in the event of a cease-fire.

"We expect they will be in much worse shape physically than those held by Hanoi," said an informed source. "Moving about all the time, living in swamps and caves, existing on the meager diet of the V.C. soldier, out of touch with any kind of medical help, except maybe a few medics and an occasional jungle hospital, there is just no way they can be as well off as those in the camps up north."

The last man to walk out from Viet Cong captivity came barefoot into a fire base near Lec Ninh more than a year ago.

He was Sgt. John Sexton of Warren, Mich. who came out suffering from anemia, malaria and badly cut and infected feet. He had lost partial vision in one eye, had a deformed arm and had lost 50 pounds in his last six months of captivity.

Pentagon figures list 114 U.S. servicemen of the total 543 believed captured held in the south, and another 51 U.S. civilians.

"We got a pretty good idea where some of them are," said an Air Force source, "and we avoid bombing those areas."

The war map in the 7th Air Force operations room has a number of "no strike zones" marked off just inside the borders of Laos and Cambodia where prisoners are believed to be held.

"They keep them moving, so it's difficult to keep up with them," said another Air Force source. "Sexton, for instance, really didn't know where he was, but it must have been somewhere near Kratie, a town in Cambodia, and it may have been very near COSVN. He told of moving often by foot, and sometimes by cart, always in groups of 10, and of seeing new American faces each time another group passed."

COSVN, the central office for South Vietnam which runs the war in the south for Hanoi, has been relentlessly hunted for six years but never found. This leads some intelligence people to the conclusion that it has been located all along in one of the no-strike zones harboring U.S. prisoners.

The scattered Viet Cong camps are pretty certain not to include the table tennis, movies and other amenities that were mentioned by the three American airmen recently released by Hanoi.

The International Committee of the Red Cross, despite repeated requests, has never been invited to the camps. Little mail gets through.

Occasionally, the jungle silence is broken by the whistling, static-filled signal of Radio Hanoi, and an American voice is heard speaking the stilted, language of propaganda.

The Pentagon has said on several occasions it will take no action against prisoners making propaganda broadcasts.

Most of the prisoners in the north are Air Force and Navy pilots. Most of the prisoners in the south by the Viet Cong are Army ground troops and helicopter crewmen, although there would be some Marine and Air Force pilots and a few Navy prisoners.

Pentagon sources are hopeful that among the civilians released from Viet Cong captivity will be all or some of the 19 missing journalists. Hanoi denies any knowledge of them.

Among them are Sean Flynn, son of actor Errol Flynn, missing since April 1970 in Cambodia on an assignment for Time Magazine; Dana Stone of CBS, who disappeared with him, and Welles Hangen, Hong Kong bureau chief of NBC, who was seen being taken prisoner on a road south of Phnom Penh.

In the past year, two more American newsmen were reported missing or captured — Terry Reynolds, a free lance writer, and Alex Shimkin of Newsweek.

A number of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong defectors and prisoners have told of seeing "Caucasian faces" among prisoners. A North Vietmanese lieutenant who defected at the end of 1970 told of seeing two journalists near Kratie, Cambodia.

"This could have been the same camp where Sexton was released from," said a U.S. Embassy source.

The Viet Cong has released 23 military POWs, compared with only 12 released by Hanoi.

In addition, from time to time for reasons of its own, the Viet Cong also has released a number of journalists.

Most sources think that because of the remote nature of the Viet Cong camps, prisoners in the south will be walked out the way Sexton was. Hence, the helicopter and medivac preparations.

"They'll probably be dumped in a field or a clearing some place, and we'll be told to go after them," said one source.

Sexton walked for 10 days from his last camp before he was given a map by his captors and a scrap of paper in English and Vietnamese asking people to assist him in reaching the American side. Eight hours later, he hobbled into the fire base near Loc Ninh.

"Sexton was only 23 and he came back in pretty rough shape," said another informant. "Some on the Viet Cong prisoner list are a good deal older than that and have been held for as long as 10 years. So we're not being any way optimistic about how they'll come out."

Desegregation Buses Still Roll

SACRAMENTO (AP) — On snappy winter mornings in California, the yellow school buses carrying students to desegregated schools roll out as usual — as if an antibusing measure on Nov. 7 ballot never passed.

But Californians did vote 4.7 million to 2.8 million for Prop. 21, a petition initiative writing into state law a ban on busing to achieve racial integration.

Despite the vote, busing-for-integration will continue along palm tree-lined Pasadena streets, over San Francisco hills and in numerous other communities until the courts rule otherwise, says Fred Gunsky, a California Department of Education consultant on racial matters.

State school officials say they are waiting to see how the courts rule on pending cases related to Prop. 21 — one in San Bernardino Superior Court and the other in the California Supreme Court. They also are awaiting detailed analysis of the law by their legal advisers, Gunsky said.

"We're up in the air right now," said Gunsky. "But many people are of the opinion that courts will find some part or all of Prop. 21 unconstitutional, and that'll put us back where we are now."

Prop. 21 is labeled as clearly unconstitutional by critics such as Nathaniel Colley of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Coleman Blease of the American Civil Liberties Union. They argue it deprives students of their right to an equal education.

Neither the San Bernardino nor State Supreme Court integration suits started out initially as challenges of Prop. 21. But after the measure's passage, the ACLU asked the state's high court and the NAACP asked the San Bernardino court to rule Prop. 21 unconstitutional.

Of the state's 4.5 million children in kindergarten through 12th grade, nearly one million ride buses to and from school each day, on trips averaging 25 to 30 minutes, Gunsky said.

But only about 50,000 of them are bused solely for integration purposes, Gunsky said. Integration busing goes on in districts where the courts have ordered integration — such as Pasadena — or where parents and school board members voluntarily imposed racial integration by school busing — such as Berkeley.

"Opposition ranges all the way from the Archie Bunkers to somebody's mother who wants to take care of her kid near home," said Gunsky. "It's not always pure bigotry."

Assemblyman William Bagley, a San Rafael Republican who authored the statewide integration guidelines which were struck down by Prop. 21's passage, had another explanation:

"Californians were afraid the yellow horde of buses would come and carry their children away," he said.

Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, said "no parents — black, white, brown or yellow — want to send their youngsters to an inferior school."

As long as people keep arguing about busing, Riles added, they will stay "stirred up" and the state school system won't move toward giving more students a better education.

"We should get away from the extreme views backing busing kids all over the place or complete segregation," said Riles, who in 1970 became California's first black state schools chief. "We have to find a middle ground."

Riles has asked his staff to report to the State Board of Education meeting in mid-December on how Prop. 21's passage affects state schools.

He said the U.S. Supreme Court has already held unconstitutional another measure similar to Prop. 21.

Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, the Los Angeles County Republican who was the main backer of Prop. 21, said he is confident the courts will uphold the new law.

"The children will win this one. No one wants busing. The blacks don't want it. The browns don't want it. The Chinese don't want it," said Wakefield. He added the majority of his own heavily working class, predominantly white district doesn't want busing either.

Wakefield contended the state integration guidelines — which became law at the start of 1972 — in effect forced busing because he said they forced integration on school districts. To integrate, he said, requires transportation "and when you talk about transportation, you're talking about busing."

Prop. 21 knocked down those guidelines, which required districts to adopt plans that would lead toward racial balancing in the schools.

Assemblyman Bagley, the guidelines' author, observed: "Passage of Prop. 21 is much more likely to force busing in California than anything that has occurred in the last 10 years. We had a set of flexible guidelines which required school districts to look ahead to avoid segregating situations five years hence."

To comply with the guidelines, districts could redraw school attendance boundaries or build schools at new sites, Bagley said.

"But the courts can't change district lines. They can't require districts to build new school sites. They can only mandate changes in school attendance areas," Bagley said.

"And Prop. 21 — by striking down the guidelines — eliminated reasonable alternatives to busing."

Two Saved After Boat Goes Down

Two young men from San Rafael were rescued unharmed yesterday afternoon from the chilly waters off San Quentin Point after their small boat capsized and sank, Coast Guard officers said today.

Thomas Weindel of 182 Belvedere Street and James Sasse of 254 Tiburon Boulevard, both age 20, were treated at Marin General Hospital for exposure. They were not otherwise injured.

The Coast Guard received a call from San Quentin Prison about 5 p.m. that a small boat had sunk and two people were in the water between the point and the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

A yacht, the Omega, which belongs to a Coast Guard Auxiliary member, rescued the pair about three minutes later and took them to the Loch Lomond Yacht Club in San Rafael. Firemen transported them to the hospital.

The Coast Guard said the two were in a 12-foot aluminum outboard motorboat.

More Choosing Trade Schools

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —An advisory council to the governor has reported that at least 200,000 persons, much higher than previous estimates, are choosing private business and trade schools in California for job training each year.

The report by the California Advisory Council on Vocational Education (CACVE) raised some policy questions for California community colleges, which provide occupational training without fees.

"The private schools have the flexibility to offer a timely and sophisticated curriculum sensitive to emerging commercial and industrial needs," the report said.

ISRAELI VIOLINIST — Violinist Pinchas Zukerman will join Maestro Seiji Ozawa at the Marin Veterans' Memorial Theater at 8 p.m. Dec. 9 for the opening concert of the San Francisco Symphony's Marin concert series. He will perform Mozart's Violin Concerto No. 4.

Spreading Of Bakery Strike Seen

NEW YORK (UPI) —A tentative agreement in the 27-day-old walkout against speciality bakeries was announced early today between striking bakery driver-salesmen and 17 of 19 firms affected.

But as the partial settlement was announced, a West Coast bakery worker's leader threatened to spread his 15-day strike eastward.

In New York, a spokesman for bakeries said that a meeting was scheduled later today between the 7,000-member teamster local 802 and the two holdout firms, Fink Bakeries and the Pechter Baking Co.

About 12,000 members of the International Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union have been off their jobs in five western states since a strike-lockout Nov. 12. They are demanding two consecutive days off per week and overtime pay for weekend work. Talks broke down Sunday.

Joseph Kane, executive vice president of the striking union, said there was no progress during Sunday's 90-minute negotiating session. He said that the strike would spread to bakeries in New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

Kane specified that the spreading strike would first affect two Wonder Bread plants in New York City and another in New Brunswick, N.J., at the completion of work today. Also scheduled as targets, he said, were a Hostess plant in Hoboken, and one in Natick, Mass.

At the end of the workday Tuesday, Kane said workers would leave their jobs at another Hostess plant in Paterson, N.J.

"We broke off with the company making a slight adjustment of their offer and we turned it down emphatically," Kane said.

A thief walked away from Luana's clothing shop at 874 Fourth Street, San Rafael, with clothes valued at $208 sometime Saturday, police reported today.

Senate Group Is Seeking To Send Team To Hanoi

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., wants to send a team to Hanoi to seek information about American prisoners and plans to aid refugees in the post-Indochina war period.

Kennedy's Senate refugee subcommittee accepted an invitation last summer from North Vietnam for the visit, staff aides report. But Kennedy is reported still negotiating with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who is described as feeling such a trip could interfere with a peace settlement.

No member of the Senate itself would make the trip, the subcommittee aides said. They said plans called for sending a nine-member team to Indochina, including three Senate staff members, five doctors and a representative of the organization Travelers Aid. Six members of the team would go to North Vietnam and three to the countries to the south.

It would be the first time a congressional committee has tried to obtain official first hand knowledge about American POWs and refugees inside North Vietnam.

Officers' Panel Meets On Calley

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — A panel of three officers from the Army's Clemency and Parole Review Board met with Lt. William L. Calley Jr. for two hours today to determine if any change should be made in his 20-year sentence for the My Lai, South Vietnam, massacre.

The officers from the Army's main prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., flew to this 3rd Army base where Calley has been confined for the past 20 months and interviewed him in his bachelor apartment.

Fill Permit Objections Will Stall Shop Center

A deluge of federal, state and private objections to a fill permit application is certain to delay — if not prevent — the proposed $35 million Ernest W. Hahn regional shopping center in Corte Madera.

The Army Corps of Engineers announced today that the federal Environmental Protection Agency has requested denial of Hahn's application to place a million cubic yards of fill on the 75-acre site east of Highway 101.

E. R. Schleiger, spokesman for the corps' permit section, said the EPA objected on grounds that the proposed filling was "an ecological threat" and the ensuing environmental damage was too great.

Delay on consideration of the application is certain, said Schleiger, because the state Resources Agency has requested no action until the problem of drainage from Highway 101 is resolved.

Schleiger said the State Division of Highways asked the resources agency to act for them, since filling the site would affect existing freeway drainage.

The application for the fill permit was made by Ernest W. Hahn Inc. of Hawthorne, developers of the shopping center for which the Corte Madera Town Council created a redevelopment agency to improve the land.

The developers proposed putting a million cubic yards of fill on the site — some of which is salt marsh and a lagoon — in two phases. First a central portion would be filled and compacted to an elevation of 9.8 feet above mean low water level. Then a surcharge would be put on top, spread over the entire acreage and left for about a year.

In the development plan prepared for the Corte Madera Redevelopment Agency, planning consultants Sedway and Cooke proposed relocating existing wildlife habitat areas in the shopping center site.

This would be accomplished, said Thomas Cooke, by opening a dike in another location in the 446 project area and allowing it to revert to salt marsh.

The majority of objections received by the corps have come from private individuals who object to the proposed filling on ecological grounds, said Schleiger.

The State Department of the Interior is also scheduled to take a stand on the application, he added, but its final comment has not yet been received.

Phone Hater Arrested In Marin

A man with a swastika carved in his forehead and a grudge in his heart against telephones was arrested Saturday in Strawberry on suspicion of damaging a pay phone.

Captured at 5:15 p.m. near the Texaco station at 570 Redwood Highway was Walter Preston Harper, 32, of San Francisco, who — according to sheriff's deputies — said he tears receivers from phone booths because his wife ran away with a phone company employee.

Harper was booked into Marin County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Arresting officers said Harper showed them where he had hidden the torn out receiver and told them he had a record for the same offense in San Francisco. Deputies said their check of his criminal record confirmed his antipathy for telephones.

Harper explained the symbol on his forehead by stating he is a member of the World Nazi Party, according to Deputies.

Two Found Dead In Car Crash

The bodies of two Santa Clara County residents were found yesterday near the wreckage of a car that had plunged about 350 feet down an embankment off Shoreline Highway, north of Tomales.

According to the Marin County Coroner's Office, the accident probably occurred late Saturday night as both prsons appeared to have died several hours before they were discovered at 11 a.m.

Dead were William Angus MacDougall, 50, of Saratoga, and Barbara Jean Peterson, 33, of Mountain View.

According to the California Highway Patrol, their car apparently ran off the east side of a curved section of Shoreline Highway between Tomales and the Fallon Road turnoff.

Both bodies were taken to mortuaries in Santa Clara County.

Their deaths were the 40th and 41st traffic fatalities recorded in Marin County this year, compared with 31 reported by this time last year.

Marriage Dissolution Requested

A Novato city councilman who said last April that she won a council seat because the election fell on her wedding anniversary filed today to dissolve her marriage.

Dorothy P. Young, who also practices law in Novato, asked in Marin Superior Court that her marriage of 13 years to Raymond D. Young be terminated.

She sought custody of the couple's only child, Tiffany Rae, 9, and child support.

On election day, April 11, she predicted she would win because she was a Capricorn whose stars were in the right places and because April 11 was her lucky date.

She noted she was married April 11, 1959, and her daughter and even her cat were born on subsequent April 11ths.

The 46-year-old councilwoman said she and her husband separated the day before Thanksgiving.

Boundary Study Set

The Tiburon City Council, meeting at 7:30 p.m. today, will consider designating the boundaries of the city's redevelopment survey area — which could include the undeveloped railroad area, the downtown area, the Red Hill Slide area and portions of Mar West Street.

City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer has recommended the council include only the developed downtown area in the redevelopment survey area.

A subcommittee of the council, however, has suggested that a larger area, including several undeveloped sections of Tiburon, be included.

Only those areas included in the survey area may be included in the actual redevelopment area.

The council will also consider a proposed ordinance which would prohibit camping on private property without the owner's permission.

Musicale Set At High School

The eighth annual "Winter Musicale," a joint effort of the concert and symphonic bands of the music department, at San Rafael High School will be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 6 in the high school auditorium.

The concert band, directed by Jay Lehmann, will perform music ranging from Bach to "Jesus Christ, Superstar."

The symphonic band, under the leadership of Terry Summa for the past eight years, will perform the finale from Symphony No. 4 by Peter Tschaikowsky and several contemporary compositions, including a medley of songs by Simon and Garfunkel.

Young Man Sought In Clay Case

Marin Inspectors today asked anyone who knows the whereabouts of 21-year-old Michael Dewey Boudinot to contact the sheriff's office, since Boudinot was a friend of a man murdered with a synthetic log in Santa Venetia last week.

Lt. Guido Battaglia said inspectors want to question Boudinot, who is believed to be in West Marin, about the slaying of Norman Mize, 47, who was found dead in his bloodsoaked bed last Tuesday.

Boudinot lived with Mize at 14 Jefferson Avenue, Santa Venetia, until about a month ago, the lieutenant said.

Boudinot was described as five feet, nine inches tall, 160 pounds, with brown hair and eyes. Battaglia said he frequents beaches.

Mize, a salesman, apparently was killed Nov. 19, but wasn't found until two days later when a fellow employee arrived at his home to take him to work.

COLLECTOR'S STORY

A Telephone Love Affair That Lasted A Lifetime

By JAY GOODWIN

Jackson G. Sauers inspects, selects, perfects and collects antique telephones.

In fact, the garage behind his house in Mill Valley is lined with more than 235 of them, ranging from an 1878 headset to the latest touch tone model.

He has "William's Coffin," an early telephone manufactured by Alexander Graham Bell's landlord in 1878 that bears a strange resemblance to a casket.

Next to it hangs "The butterstamp," a model produced in the same year whose carved wooden mouthpiece was named after the farmer's butterstamp of the same shape.

Then, there's a primitive telephone switchboard, first installed in New Haven in 1878 and now residing amid a collection of later-year switchboards of Sauers's shelves.

Clearly, Sauers loves telephones.

He has been tracking them down for almost 25 years and now prides himself in owning a collection which he claims ranks with the best in he country.

For Sauers, locating antique phones is only part of the fun. He also spends months, and sometimes years, rebuilding phones with authentic, original components that he has scrounged from a variety of sources.

All of the phones adorning his walls are in working condition with original parts restored.

Beautiful carved and painted phones, from more than a dozen countries, appear side by side in his two-room workshop-studio.

Now 62, Sauers has operated a beauty salon for more than 25 years in Mill Valley. In recent years, he has devoted himself to his vocation less and less and his avocation more and more.

A small yellow index card, tacked inconspicuously to a shelf in his garage, offers a clue to Sauers's insatiable appetite for old telephones:

"The laborer works with his hands.

The artisan works with his hands and his head.

The artist works with his hands, his head and his heart."

Phones have captured his imagination since he was a boy in Colorado. He recalls the excitement of sneaking up to crank the early hand phone in his boyhood home. Sometimes, he would be paddled for his cranking, but his fascination for phones never diminished.

"I never got enough cranking," he said with a smile, when asked when his love affair with phones began.

It was 1875 when Alexander Graham Bell first uttered those immortal words, "Watson, come quickly!"

Since then, dozens of phone companies have manufactured hundreds of models, each copying and improving on their competition.

Sauers has acquired samples of what he considers to be outstanding phones produced by various companies worldwide. To get them, he visits flea markets, travels through the countryside, places advertisements in antique trading magazines and corresponds with members of the Antique Telephone Collectors Association in Kansas.

Of course, as old phones become scarcer, they become more expensive. This truth is not lost on Sauers, who grumbles, "Now, you can't buy anything — even in the worst condition — for less than $50. Most phones cost between $75 and $100 to buy."

Sauers, a trim and meticulous man, surveyed his vast collection and estimated its current value at better than $10,000. "And, that's just like money in the bank," he added, confidently.

In addition to collecting phones, Sauers prefers to use them whenever possible.

Every door, window and gate of his home, at 74 Neson Avenue, is wired with a telephone. From his switchboard inside his garage, he can talk to anyone anywhere on his property.

"A lot of people don't like the phone," he says, "But I would just as soon do anything on the phone. I think it's kind of a secluded way of doing things. It isn't that I don't like people — it's more for privacy."

Years ago, he wrote to every major country in the world seeking information and, perhaps, an old telephone. He said he heard from every country except China and Russia. He now numbers antique phones from Austria, Sweden, Denmark, Hungary, France, Finland, Egypt, Italy, Switzerland, Spain, Cyprus and Canada in his collection.

Highlights of his collection include:

A 1910 telephone booth from Sausalito with its original incandescent light bulb still burning.

A temporary emergency phone directory issued in May 1906, listing doctors and lawyers and other important individuals who had survived the San Francisco earthquake.

A phone with a replaceable glass mouthpiece manufactured by the Red Cross Co. and designed to be removed and boiled during a flu epidemic.

Sauers and his wife, Louise, have no children. They live in a home decorated with beautiful wood sculptures, the product of a past hobby.

Today, Sauers spends a great deal of time in his garage, repairing, cataloguing, tinkering and, most important, admiring his phones.

Like the true artist, he works with his hands, his head and his heart.

Revamping Of Crusade Body Eyed

Suggestions aimed at making the governing body of the United Bay Area Crusade more representative and less cumbersome will be discussed at a public meeting in San Francisco tomorrow.

A committee which has been studying how to improve the Crusade's governing structure has recommended reducing the current board of trustees from 550 members to 165. The board of directors would be similarly reduced from 70 members to 34 persons.

Included in the representation would be representatives of various agencies which belong to the Crusade, as well as persons who benefit by it, including low income persons.

The Crusade's board is not expected to act on the suggestions until next month.

Tomorrow's discussion will be at noon at the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium, 77 Beale Street.

$2,000 Taken In Store Holdup

A masked gunman yesterday robbed the Safeway store at the Washington Square Shopping Center in Petaluma of an estimated $2,000.

Police said the robber wearing a ski mask apparently hid in the store all night and greeted store manager Robert F. Harris, 23, with a sawed off 12 gauge shotgun when he arrived for work at 6 a.m.

The gunman forced Harris to open the safe and bound his hands and feet. After jamming the cash into a paper bag, the robber made a telephone call and said simply "now" to signal an accomplice to pick him up.

He was described as 25 to 30 years old, tall, with a medium build and wearing a Navy pea coat and heavy shoes.

Woman Driver Sets A Record

Paula Murphy broke the international land speed record for the third time recently when she flashed across the finish at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah at speeds over 250 miles per hour.

The speed driver raced the quarter-mile course in two directions at an average speed of 134.168 miles per hour, driving the Pollution Packer rocket car of Tony Fox.

In recent years Paula has broken women's land speed records both in a passenger car and the jet-powered speedster.

Draft Resister Under Arrest

A 22-year-old Larkspur man has been arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for refusing induction into the armed forces, special agent Charles W. Bates reported today.

Bates said David Henry Metzger was arrested Saturday for refusing induction on Nov. 10, 1971. He was indicted by a San Francisco Grand Jury last May.

Metzger was held to appear before a U.S. Magistrate in San Francisco today, according to Bates.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Monday, Nov. 27, the 332nd day of 1972 with 34 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn.

American historian Charles Beard was born Nov. 27, 1874.

On this day in history:

In 1901, the War Department authorized creation of the Army War College to instruct commissioned officers.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman named Gen. George Marshall special representative to China.

In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower issued a statement denying differences over the Suez Canal had weakened the American-British-French accord over NATO.

In 1962, all 97 persons aboard a U.S.-bound jet were killed when it crashed in Peru.

A thought for the day: British author Rudyard Kipling said, "The silliest woman can manage a clever man; but it needs a very clever woman to manage a fool.::

New Plan For The Worker

By Phillip W. Whitcomb
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

PARIS, France — Seventy French firms now are using the three-part working-day plan. So far, at least, they say that their employees are happier and more efficient.

The three-part day, tested earlier in Germany and Sweden, consists of an optional arrived period, a midday period of "total cooperation," and a final period of optional departure times. Total time worked each day must, of course, be that for which the employee is paid.

The first French attempt began in Alsace in 1970, in a factory which now has definitely accepted the three-part day.

"Most of our management staff were against it," the director, Pierre Helmer, told a French interviewer. "But they agreed to a four-month trial, and the trial convinced them."

A prime advantage for employees in this particular factory is linked to their use of public transport, for which the operating intervals are 20 to 40 minutes or even an hour.

With the old fixed-hour system nearly all had to arrive far too early to be on time, a few did find the official opening time convenient, and some arrived every day in a breathless rush.

Police reportedly were astounded by the reduction in street accidents during rush hours. Foremen, at first solidly opposed to the three-part day, changed over because first-hour tension vanished and maneuvers for obtaining a quick beverage before the authorized break came to an end.

Leaving times, Helmer said, now were made to fit train times — or shopping. In central Paris, 1,800 clerical workers in a financial institution, 95 per cent of whom arrived by subway, train, and bus from the Paris suburbs, are now on the three-part day, after final approval by the management had been obtained.

"I was previously unable to get my 6-year-old boy ready for school and walk there with him as other mothers do," a woman accountant explained. "I had to leave him with a 45-minute wait, hoping that he wouldn't get into any trouble, or perhaps change his mind and not go at all. Now, though I reach the office only 35 minutes later, I can take him to school as others do."

"We were the first firm in the Paris region to try the three-part day," the manager explained, "and we've now tested it for a year. For us, at least, it succeeds. The central part of the day, the "total cooperation" or coordination period, is more than sufficient for necessary interchanges between departments and employees.

"In fact, we're convinced that a great deal of the moving about, interoffice phoning, and exchange of messages which characterized our previous operations was utterly unnecessary. Office sections as well as individuals save their queries and messages now, in order to combine them and clear them all up at once in the midday period.

"Another advantage is that during the mid-period we are absolutely sure of maximum activity and total presence — which wasn't true throughout the day before. Finally, some section managers say that a new sense of operational unity, they call it, is developing."

Doubt or blunt opposition still characterizes the average managerial response to requests for a trial of the three-part day. One of the largest American multinational companies, with 1,700 French employees, a very large Paris office, and two factories far away in the provinces, has deferred a decision four times. Requests from the employees' committee (such committees are required by French law) have been met with a promise to consider the problem — though each time the managerial decision was in fact strongly negative.

The same managerial conservatism almost prevented a Paris suburban factory, this one entirely French, from even trying the optional schedule. Efficiency is sure to drop, the foremen said.

"There has been no drop in efficiency," the personnel manager states, "and in my opinion based on my contacts with employees, there is greater efficiency. Or at least I am positive of one thing: fixed times, fixed habits, had put most people into a deadening rut that has now disappeared. They've been awakened by the possibility of earlier mornings, longer evenings, getter up earlier, getting up later, going to places where work hours kept them from going before. And for the present, at least, that early morning expression of tension, perhaps of martyrdom, has disappeared."

"Me?" a 20-year-old assembler said. "I love it. I always did like the morning even in winter, so I start as soon as they'll let me, at six sharp. On my afternoons I've visited every supermarket within 20 miles."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Do Your Joints Creak, Crack And Click? Here's The Reason

Many people write us about creaking joints. Some persons are embarrassed by the clicking and cracking sounds, because, to them, it means arthritis or old age. Still others find the creaking a source of amusement. We recently heard from the wife of a professional football player who constantly cracked his knuckles. "He does this not only when ill at ease, but also when sitting alone watching television. Where does the sound come from and is knuckle cracking a harmful habit?"

CREAKY HIPS and knees in an older person usually mean a gross alteration in the surface of the joint leading to a roughening of the opposing surfaces. There may be some loss or roughening of the cartilage. In other instances, the noise stems from the fibrous capsule of the joint or nearby tendons. It is not always easy to pinpoint the source of the sound, except that, in many instances, the joint is arthritic.

The exception is the "pop" that occurs when the finger is pulled or the knuckle is pushed in. Careful x-ray studies show that when the finger joint is pulled apart, a crescent-shaped gas bubble develops when the cracking sound is made. The noise is due to the collapse of the bubble. The cracking sound is probably caused by the fluid at opposite sides of the bubble rushing inwards and meeting.

THE X-RAYS also reveal that the joint space takes some 15 minutes to return to normal and the structure cannot be recracked until this occurs. The gas is mainly carbon dioxide and comes from the synovial membrane that lines the inside of the joint cavity. The air space acts as a vacuum or suction to keep the joints together, especially in gripping or lifting.

Gas bubbles of these types are transient and symptomless.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal)

DETERGENT BURN

Mr. K. writes: Is detergent burn (blisters, burning, itching, and peeling) due to allergy? My hands still are affected even though I wear rubber gloves when washing the dishes. P.S. I am a bachelor.

REPLY

Yes, but detergents are not the only culprits in dishpan hands. Other factors may play a role, including water and injury to the skin from bumping, scraping, and scratching in handling knives and pans. In addition, going out of doors in cold weather shortly after washing the dishes leads to chapping, a condition difficult to distinguish from dishpan hands.

TELESCOPED INTESTINE

A reader writes: I have heard of a child who had had surgery for intussusception. Can you tell me something about this condition?

REPLY

Intussusception is the most common cause of bowel obstruction in infancy. One portion of the intestine telescopes into another, disturbing the blood supply to the inside part of the colon. The tissues swell and obstruction follows. Surgery is needed.

TERMINAL CANCER

A reader writes: When pain comes is cancer in the terminal stage?

REPLY

Pain may come early, late, or not at all. It depends upon the location of the cancer and what it is doing to the neighborhing nerves and organs.

RECURRENCES

M. G. writes: Do most diseases occur only once?

REPLY

No. Contagious diseases, such as measles and mumps, usually make only one appearance, whereas colds, bladder infections, boils, and many skin conditions come and go. Other disorders, such as multiple sclerosis, high blood pressure, and leukemia are chronic in nature. Most people are lucky and live many decades without developing a serious illness.

PARKINSONISM

D.K.J. writes: Is Parkinson's disease known by any other name?

REPLY

Yes — parkinsonism, paralysis agitans, and shaking palsy. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this disorder.

PEELING NAILS

D. M. writes: Why do my fingernails keep peeling to the meat?

REPLY

Weakness and brittleness of the nails may be associated with trauma or the use of polish remover.

PHOBIA SNAKES

A reader writes: Do you have any helpful advice on how to overcome fears about imaginary snakes? These thoughts cause anxiety and nervous strain.

REPLY

A psychiatrist may solve your problem, but don't expect him to use an imaginary mongoose.

GAS PRESSURE

D.P. writes: My husband complains of gas pressing on his heart. Is this possible?

REPLY

No. The diaphragm separates the ticker from the gas, which usually is located in the large intestine. Intestinal gas seldom has enough force to displace the heart. Gas in the stomach or intestine may produce this sensation, but damage to the heart need not be feared. On the other hand, heart pains may masquerade as distress from gas.

WHY FLUORIDE?

A.R. writes: Why is fluroide helpful in preventing cavities only in children?

REPLY

Because, to be effective, the fluoride must get into the enamel This is possible only during the growing periods of childhood.

WITHOUT BREAD

H.S. writes: Am I harming myself by eating meat without bread?

REPLY

No. Many people live a long, healthy life without one or both of these foods.

INFLAMED THYROID

A reader writes: What is the treatment of choice in thyroiditis?

REPLY

There are several types of inflammation of the thyroid gland. A simple infection of the thyroid gland often responds to aspirin, ice packs, and bed rest. Other remedies include x-ray therapy, antithyroid drugs, and best of all, cortisone. Surgery is needed occasionally.

HEART DEFECT

S. V. writes: Should a woman with enlarged rheumatic heart and leakage be expected to do housework?

REPLY

This depends on how much there is to do. If palpitation, shortness of breath, or swelling of the ankles occurs, she is doing too much.

DANDRUFF IN EARS

T. T. writes: Where does dandruff in the ears come from?

REPLY

Too little wax, a fungal infection, or eczema. Sometimes the ear condition is associated with dandruff of the scalp.

SWOLLEN TOES

L. P. writes: Could swollen toes be due to arthritis? I have the disease in my knees and shoulders and now the toes of my left foot have become puffy.

REPLY

Yes. Arthritis of the joints of the toes occurs in much the same way as in the joints of the fingers. Involvement of the metatarsal joints at the base of the toes often is mistaken for fallen arches.

SPECIALISTS

K. N. writes: I know that there are women's specialists, but want to know if there are men's specialists too.

REPLY

Yes, if you mean physicians who specialize in diseases peculiar to women or men. Those specializing in women's diseases are gynecologists. The urologist comes closest to specializing in men's disorders, even though he treats women with kidney or bladder disturbances.

NITROGEN MUSTARD

G. N. writes: For what illness is nitrogen mustard used?

REPLY

Leukemia and other diseases involving the lymphatic system.

INFECTION FATIGUE

A. G. writes: Why is a person so tired when he has a virus infection of the nose and throat?

REPLY

Fatigue is one of the effects of the toxins created by the infection.

Lot Split Will Be Considered

The Fairfax Planning Commission will consider William Poeschl's application for a lot split on a parcel between the Oak Manor Shopping Center and Christ the Victor Church off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard when it meets at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Women's Club.

The commission will also consider granting a permit to allow a Jehovah's Witnesses church on the parcel.

Cans Bring Much Cash

GOLDEN, Colo. — Aluminum containers are being collected at a record pace in the Adolph Coors Co. cash-for-cans program in 11 western states, the company reports.

Figures for the first 10 months of 1972 show that collections totaled 24,634,543 pounds of aluminum, 74 per cent ahead of the amount collected from January through October last year.

The 1972 payout, at the dime-a-pound which Coors distributors pay for all types of aluminum cans, is $2,463,543.

Since the program's outset, the regional brewery's 166 distributors have bought 48,334,449 pounds of aluminum, the equivalent of nearly 1.2-billion aluminum cans, at an average 24 containers per pound. Total payout to date exceeds $4.8-million.

October collections, Coors officials report, totaled 2,361,179 pounds, substantially ahead of 1971.

Brewery officials also noted that, for the first 10 months of this year, there was a 33.5 per cent rate of return in the company's 11-state marketing area, well above the 25 per cent return recorded for the same period last year.

The return figures reflect the amount of aluminum which Coors is buying back through its cash-for-cans program, expressed as a per cent of all aluminum the company puts into the marketplace.

The cash-for-cans program operates through all Coors distributors in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah and Wyoming.

Jackie Pictures Could Be Real

NEW YORK (UPI) —Though Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis shrugged off the possibility she may have been photographed in the nude, her husband conceded the opportunity for such pictures exist on the Greek island of Skorpios, Newsweek magazine reported Sunday.

Playmen, an Italian magazine, published 14 color photograph's of Mrs. Onassis—or someone Playmen claimed was Mrs. Onassis—in the nude and near-nude.

Though there is no proof the woman was Mrs. Onassis, her husband, Aristotle Onassis, conceded that "I have to take off my pants to put on my bathing suit sometimes. She does too."

Bank Ends Taxi Pay For Women

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Because of equal rights laws, the Bank of America is ending its long-standing practice of paying taxi fares for women who start or end work at night.

Males complained, the bank said Sunday, that such payments were illegal sex discrimination since they were not extended to men.

A suit taking a similar position has been filed against Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. which says it will continue paying the fares until the action is adjudicated.

Texan Taken To Solitary For Safety

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI) — Kenneth Adami, 60, described as a loner, a hermit who managed his elderly father's remote ranch by himself, has been put in solitary confinement in the Webb County jail, where he is charged with shooting to death five unarmed men.

"He hasn't complained about it," said Sheriff P.L. Flores. "He's been in there alone all weekend."

Adami was transferred to a cell by himself Saturday because Mexican nationals in the jail had made threats against him.

The five men Adami is accused of killing were Mexican aliens who had stopped at a shack on the Adami ranch to seek food. Flores said it was customary for ranchers to leave supply shacks unlocked and allow the aliens to take food.

"They don't steal anything," he said. "They just eat."

Flores said Adami was returning from a hunting trip Wednesday evening when he came upon the five men in a three-room shack 200 yards from the main ranchhouse. Flores said the rancher used a highpowered rifle to "bombard" the room with bullets from the outside.

Only two of the victims have been identified. Diego Velasquez Barrintos, 44, of Guanajuato Province, Mexico, was identified through a border registration card. The other known victim was Isidro K. Cabrear, but his age and hometown were not known.

More Soviet Jews Arrive In Israel

TEL AVIV (UPI) —The largest number of Soviet Jews to arrive in Israel in a single day flew in today aboard four airliners—three from Vienna and one from Bucharest.

Immigration officials said there were about 600 newcomers on the flights, pushing the number of arrivals from the Soviet Union this year close to the 40,000 mark.

AMA Budget Pinch Results In Cutbacks

CINCINNATI (UPI) —Faced with a budget squeeze, the American Medical Association announced Sunday it had eliminated several of its standing committees and councils, and reported an increase in dues may be in the offing.

AMA Chairman John R. Kernodle said membership dues, currently $110 a year, might increase "in the long run," but said such a move is not imminent.

Advertising sales and dues from 155,648 members are primary sources of income for AMA programs. Cutting back the programs will save $840,000.

The board of trustees, told the 26th AMA clinical four-day convention, which ends Wednesday, that it regretted the move but added: "Pruning of the tree has to start somewhere."

The groups abolished include the Councils on Drugs, Occupational Health, Voluntary Health Agencies, and National Security, and the Committees on Aerospace Medicine, Occupational Toxicology, Mental Health in Industry, Continuing Professional Education Programs, Medicine and Religion, and Medical Aspects of Automotive Safety.

Among the 55 resolutions introduced was one by the Louisiana delegation urging that the Council of Drugs be restored. All were referred to committees for consideration today and will be voted on Tuesday.

AMA President C.A. Hoffman told the House of Delegates Sunday that crime was one of the "primary obstacles" to alleviating doctor shortages in ghettoes. He proposed security measures to protect medical workers.

"The senseless violence...deters the physician—as well as the TV repairman, the delivery man, and yes, sometimes even the police—from entering these areas," Hoffman said.

"It is possible that part of the solution may lie in neighborhood health centers with property security — guards, fenced parking lots and other precautions designed to protect the physician and health care workers."

Nixon, Philip Most Admired

LONDON (UPI) —President Nixon ranks with Prince Philip as the most admired man in Britain, a Gallup poll said today. Two years ago, Nixon was fifth and in 1971 he drew three per cent of the vote.

The poll, commissioned by the newspaper Daily Telegraph, said both were cited as the most popular man by nine per cent of the Britons surveyed.

Queen Elizabeth, who last week celebrated her 25th wedding anniversary with Philip, was cited by 25 per cent of those surveyed as the woman they most admired. Prime Minister Edward Heath and Conservative member of parliament Enoch Powell tied in third place with eight per cent each.

Discounted Dual Funds Offer Attractive Investment Future

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like some information on dual-purpose funds. If I invested would I have to purchase both types of shares? Since my goal is long-term growth I prefer not to. — S.T.

A. The unique investment concept, on which the seven dual-purpose closed-end funds are based, allows income-oriented investors to purchase one class of shares, and growth-minded investors the other. The two classes are distinct entities, trading separately and possessing diverse options. Six are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the seventh, Putnam Duofund, is unlisted, trading over-the-counter.

Income shares, which receive all dividends earned on the total portfolio, have a predetermined life span. At maturity these shares will be redeemed at prices close to their initial offering price. American DualVest, with the nearest maturity, will redeem its income preferred shares in 1979. The other six funds have maturity dates from 1982 to 1985.

After redeeming the income shares, the balance of the portfolio's assets accrue to the capital shares. Thus, at that time, the discount from net asset value at which capital shares are trading is eliminated. Considering that discounts now range from 6 per cent to 32 per cent, this picture is an attractive incentive for growth investors.

For example; American DualVest, with capital shares now trading about $10 — a 26.5 per cent discount, will redeem its income shares at $15 in 1979. Assuming no dividend arrearages — there are none at present — and a modest 6 per cent annual growth in asset value, capital shares would have a net asset value of over $25 at the maturity date. This represents a 21 per cent annual rate of appreciation from the present discounted trading price for the capital shares.

The leverage factor plus the substantial discounts now available are the principal attractions of the group. American DualVest with 1979 maturity, high leverage and substantial discount would be my choice in the group. Leverage Fund and Putnam Duofund also have long-term growth merit.

Market Registers Price Dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices on the New York Stock Exchange fell back Monday under profit taking. Trading was fairly active.

Declines dominated advances, 892 to 440, among the 1,690 issues on the tape. Volume came to more than 8,600,000 shares, compared with 6,700,000 shares traded in the comparable period Friday.

The sharp drop was a combination of profit taking following the sharp rise of the market in recent weeks, the negative Vietnam news and the renewal of inflation worries among investors.

In the economic news, October's machine tool orders rose 1.5 per cent from September and were double the orders in October.

Raider Superiority Shows Against Chiefs

OAKLAND — Yesterday's football game in the Oakland Coliseum was not a championship contest — officially — but in reality it meant the American Football Conference western title. That's why the scalpers in front of the gate were getting $15 a ticket just minutes before the opening kickoff.

For the Raiders, who easily handled the Kansas City Chiefs, 26-3, it means they only have to win one of their final three games to clinch the divisional title and a spot in the playoffs. For the Chiefs, the season is really over. Now two and one-half games behind the Raiders, their chances are hanging by a thread. Or as the baseball people like to say, the Raiders' magic number is one.

THE RAIDER FANS really like to stick up for their men and running back Marv Hubbard had the crowd behind him 100 per cent during the second half when Oakland controlled the game and kept the Chiefs away from the ball. The fans, getting back at the abuse the K.C. people heaped on Hubbard three weeks ago when the two teams played there, chanted, "We want Hubbard! We want Hubbard!" Quarterback Daryle Lamonica complied with the fans' wishes and Hubbard ground out most of his 96 yards during that half. He received a standing ovation when head coach John Madden took him out moments before the end of the game.

Pulling off his pads and uniform in front of his locker after the game, Hubbard tried his best to play down the thing. "Sure I wanted to carry the ball," he said, "but if I have to block, I'll block. If I have to runn pass patterns I will do that. I just want to win the championship." About the crowd's chants, he said, "I would rather hear them chanting, 'We want the Raiders.' "

Standing there with a cut over his right eye and his right hand swollen to twice its normal size, Hubbard talked of injuries, but not his own. "They (Kansas City Chiefs) were slowed up by injuries. There were some injuries to some good players and that had to hurt them." Chiefs' star wide receiver Otis Taylor was out of the lineup before the game even started and quarterback Len Dawson, defensive tackle Buck Buchanan and middle linebacker Willie Lanier were all injured and knocked out of the game very early.

"WE'VE HAD AN UP and down season all year," said Madden after the game. "When we lost to Kansas City we learned what to do to win and what not to do. We knew what we had to do today."

When one of the reporters pointed out the Chiefs didn't look like the same team that beat the Raiders three weeks ago, Madden answered back, "We didn't look like the same Raider team."

He was right. The Raiders were the better team. The game was never in doubt, and I do not think the presence of their injured stars would have changed things on this day. The Raiders wanted this one too much.

ONE STROLL THROUGH the Chiefs' dressing room told the story. It was a tired, beaten team. Among those trying to cheer up the players was Reg Carolan of Novato, a man who played tight end for the Chiefs just a few years ago before retiring from football. He's now public relations director for First American Title in Santa Rosa.

"I really feel for them," said the handsome Reg. "This is the season for them. They realize it."

About then Dawson passed by and greeted Carolan, but Len had trouble speaking because of a painful jaw. He wasn't going to be chewing on steak for a few days.

AND FOR ANY of the tail-gaters in the coliseum parking lot who saw that Pontiac station wagon with the California license plates that read "CHIEFS": it didn't belong to Carolan. He drives a Porsche, but still roots for his Chiefs.

The way things stand today, there's a very good chance both the Raiders and 49ers will reach the playoffs. Wouldn't that be something if they made it all the way to the Super Bowl, scheduled this time in Los Angeles? It would be very fitting. Two Northern California teams playing in Southern California for the championship of professional football. It just might happen.

Doctor Tries To Shift Blame To DeMont

Dr. Daniel F. Hanley, a member of the International Olympic Committee's medical commission, yesterday said Terra Linda's Rick DeMont should take some of the blame over his disqualification at the Munich Olympics.

Speaking at the 14th National Conference on the Medical Aspects of Sports in Cincinnati, Hanley said drugs are prohibited for athletes in the games because of their danger, not because they could improve an individual's performance.

"The reason for the ban is the deaths in past Olympics caused directly by drug use," Hanley said according to a dispatch by United Press International.

Hanley said DeMont, disqualified at the Olympic swim events for taking drugs for his asthma condition, should shoulder some of the blame. He said DeMont, along with the others, was told about the ban on drugs.

"The U.S. doctor told him not to take any of his drugs without consulting him first because a couple were on the banned list," Hanley said. "And available to all were an IOC book on doping and my book on popping pills."

When tests indicated a banned drug, ephedrine, was in DeMont's blood, he lost his gold medal for the 400-meter freestyle and was eliminated from all other competition.

DeMont this morning denied Hanley's charges.

"In Washington (at pre-Olympic meetings) they told other people not to take certain kinds of vitamins but they never told me anything. I was never told to check with doctors about my medicine," said DeMont. "The first time anyone said anything to me about medicine was after the race (400-meter freestyle) when they asked me for the medicine.

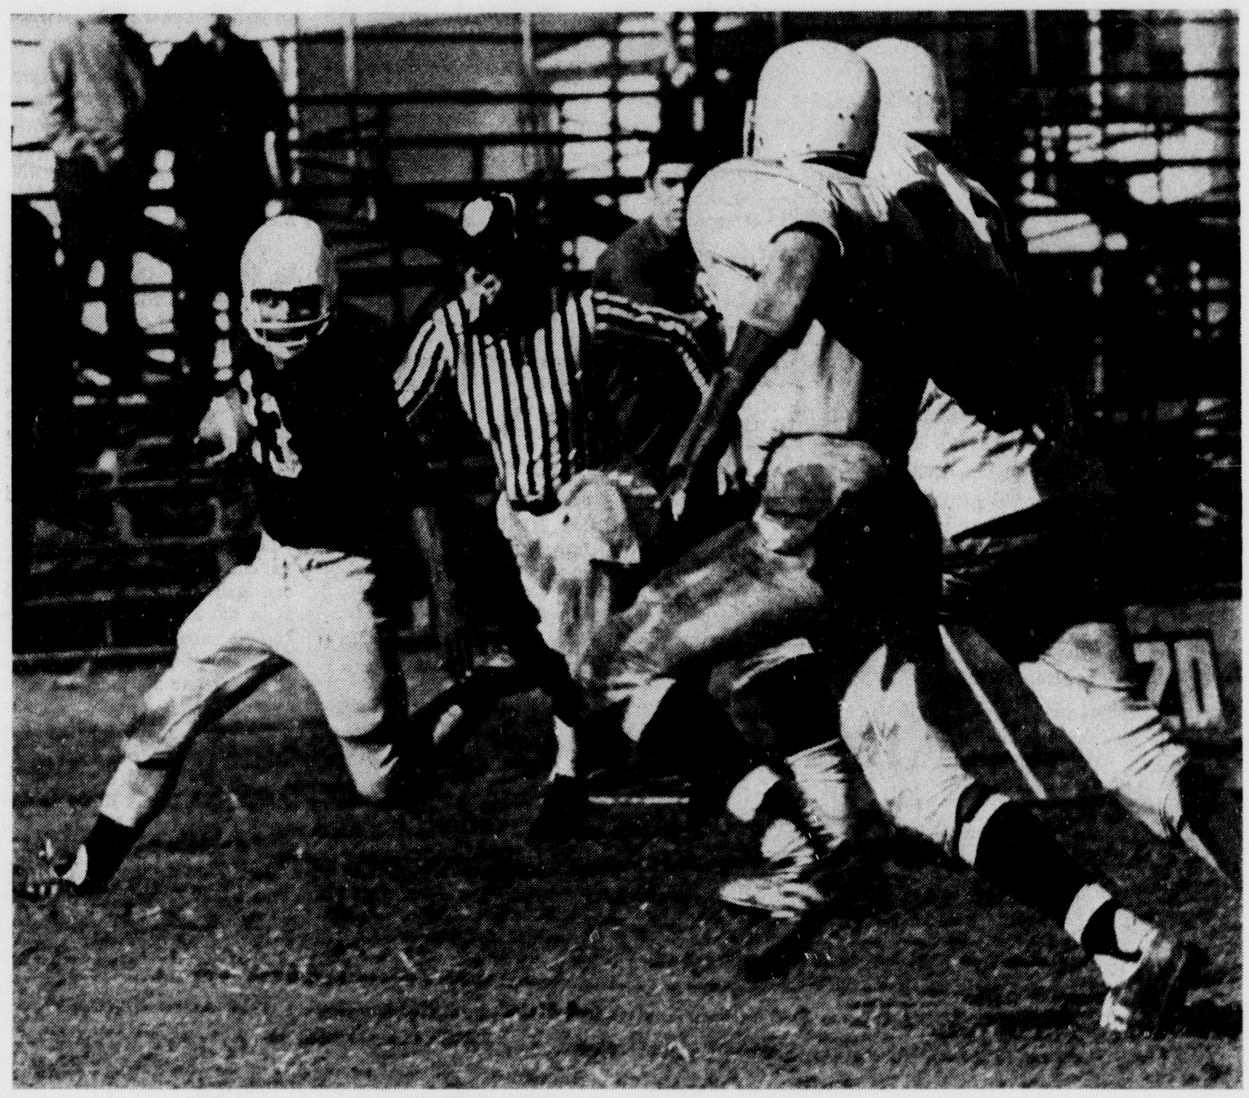

William J. Bowman, head coach of the U.S. Olympic track team, said Sunday treatment of Americans at the Munich Games so upset him that he considered quitting the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"I was so frustrated that I considered resigning. . . when I got home," Bowerman said.

"But after a few weeks, my thinking became more lucid," Bowman said. "I realized that by walking out, I would lose any effective voice I may have on what goes on. They may throw me out, but I won't quit."

Bowman accused officials of the U.S. Olympic Committee with being more interested in promoting their own positions than in the Games' declared purpose of competition to promote understanding among nations.

He said reform of the committee should be a matter of public and congressional concern because it is granted its authority under public law.

MAKING A RUN FOR IT

Quarterback Floyd Jones (23) of the Pirates evaded Jimmy Rider (81) and Popeye Jackson (30) of the Yard Hogs and made a long run to the one-yard line Saturday in the annual football game at San Quentin Prison. The Pirates, the varsity team that regularly plays outside opponents, scored a 25-2 victory over their foes, drawn from the general prison population. About 300 inmates watched the Yard Hogs play a surprisingly strong game and avert a shutout for just the second time in the 15-year series, according to Lt. Keith Foncannon, a prison official.

RAIDER SUCCESS

Winning Big Games Key

OAKLAND (UPI) — Over the last 10 seasons only one team in pro football—the Baltimore Colts—has been more successful than the Oakland Raiders.

And the key to success for both clubs has been their ability to win big games.

Sunday's 26-3 thrashing of the Kansas City Chiefs was one of those games for the Raiders, now only one victory away from another division title.

To put it generously, the Raiders took the ball to the Chiefs, outhitting them at the start and by the time they were through, four Kansas City players were sent to the sidelines and what could have been a difficult task turned out to be little more than a workout.

Daryle Lamonica threw his 12th and 13th touchdown passes of the year, George Blanda kicked a pair of field goals and Charlie Smith ran for his sixth TD as the Raiders registered the 100th victory of their 12year career.

On the second Oakland offensive play of the year, defensive tackle Buck Buchanan suffered a knee injury and a few plays later, middle linebacker Willie Lanier went off, also with a knee injury. Then, early in the second quarter, quarterback Len Dawson took a blow on the chin and minutes later running back Ed Podolak limped off with a hip pointer.

Add to that the fact star wide receiver Otis Taylor got in for only one play and Elmo Wright, another wide receiver, didn't play at all and it's obvious why the Chiefs weren't able to put up much of a fight.

Hank Stram, in danger of winding up with his first under .500 season at Kansas City, said losing his key players made a difference, "but we can't use that as an excuse.

"The Raiders," he said, "controlled the line of scrimmage from the start and it was hard to get it back. You have to give them credit. They played very well. We just got beat."

Stram, whose club now is 5-6 compared to Oakland's 7-3-1 record in the American Football Conference West, said he hasn't given up on the year but his club's chances are not good.

John Madden, the Raider coach, was so happy with the victory that at times he didn't make much sense, and he apologized for that.

"This was a fine effort in a big game," he said after collecting himself. "We went out and did it. We didn't look like the same club that lost to the Chiefs earlier this year (27-140. Of course we got a big break when Buchanan and Lanier went off."

The Raiders now have games left with the Chargers, Jets and Bears while the Chiefs play the Broncos, Colts and Falcons. The first time the Raiders win a game or the Chiefs lose one, Oakland will clinch the AFC West.

In Sunday's game, the Raiders went 47 yards in nine plays the first time they got the ball for a 7-0 lead and after line-

Marin Tar Cagers Win 2nd Straight

College of Marin's basketball team, which anticipated a tough game Saturday night, surprised its coach with a remarkably one-sided 91-78 victory over Diablo Valley College in Pleasant Hill.

Will Garner scored 34 points and hauled down 13 rebounds to lead the Tars to their second straight non-league victory of the young season.

"I didn't expect us to win that handily," said Tar coach John Panagakis. "They (Diablo Valley) had four men returning from last year's team, and last year we just squeaked it out in the last minute."

There was no such trouble this time, as Marin bounced back from an early 10-4 defecit to take a commanding 44-31 lead at halftime. "We had the margin up to 24 in the second half, but then we let up a bit," said Panagakis.

"We made some mistakes again, but we ran the fast break well. The break begins with a rebound, and we outrebounded them, 42-20." Forward Joe Casteel grabbed 10, and centers Neil Traub and Dana La Ferriere had seven and six, respectively.

"We were happy with the play of La Ferriere," Panagakis added. The 6-8 center scored 16 points, third behind Garner and Casteel (19).

"Garner was all over the court," said Panagakis. "Casteel did one heck of a job. (Guard) Len Smith did a fine job generating the offense and played good defense, too. His man (Ken Cobb) got 24, but 12 of them were on tops and lucky bounces."

The tars shot 44 per cent from the field on 35 successes in 78 shots.

HERITAGE GOLF

4 Californians Dominate

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI)—The Heritage Golf Classic is being played on a resort island off the South Carolina coast but its leader board reads like it is in California.

Going into today's fourth and final round of the $125,000 tournament, next to last stop on this year's Professional Golfers Association tour, John Miller of San Francisco holds a one stroke lead over Forrest Fezler of San Jose and Lon Hinkle of San Diego with Jerry Heard of Visalia one more stroke behind.

Those four Californians are the only golfers in an original field of 156 still as good as even par after three days of play over the tough Harbour Town course. And they probably wouldn't be that well off if one of the first two rounds hadn't been played on the easier, adjacent Ocean Course.

Miller, battling biting cold and a strong wind had a 4-overpar 75 in Sunday's third round, a round which had been delayed a day by a heavy Saturday rain. But, thanks to being 6 under at the start of Sunday's play, Miller wound up with a 54-hole total of 2-under 211.

Fezler, who was tied with Miller when the round began, struggled to a 5-over-par 76 and Hinkle, who is making his PGA

PREP BASKETBALL

Three Marin Teams Show Winning Ways

Three high school basketball teams from Marin figured out three drastically different approaches to winning Saturday night — Terra Linda using a freewheeling offense, Marin Catholic a cautious control game and Novato a basket with 30 seconds left in overtime.

Terra Linda scored 40 field goals to thrash visiting Healdsburg, 87-54; Marin Catholic took only 28 shots from the field in defeating host St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 30-19; and Novato edged visiting Hogan of Vallejo, 63-62. Tamalpais was the lone loser, 56-35 to Riordan in San Francisco.

"It was the defense that turned the tide," said coach Bob Corley of Terra Linda (2-0). "The full-court man-on-man press became more effective in the second half and gave us some awfully good shots."

Ahead only 28-27 at halftime, Terra Linda made 26 of 50 shots after intermission to win going away. Mark Lowey's 20 points led the rout.

Marin Catholic (1-1) held the ball several times, including four and a half minutes at one stretch, to force St. Patrick's out of a zone defense. The Wildcats were successful on the rare shots they took, hitting 13 of 28.

"Ben Partee and sophomore Mike Mahoney did super jobs on defense," said coach Dave Gonsalves. "And we only made four turnovers."

Novato (1-1) got a basket from 6-foot-1 junior forward Curtis Saine on a fast break with 30 seconds left in overtime to defeat Hogan.

The Hornets whittled away at Hogan's 26-20 halftime lead with center Joe Barnes leading the way by scoring 15 of his 23 points in the third quarter.

Tamalpais (0-2), nothing if not consistent, lost its second straight game by 21 points. Mike Dinehart scored 17 for Tam in defeat.

Seals Try To Move Up Against St. Louis

OAKLAND (UPI)—The California Golden Seals, last place in the western division of the National Hockey League, try to inch up on St. Louis Wednesday night when they meet the Blues at the Oakland Coliseum arena.

The Seals returned from a road trip that saw them gain only one win in four games, a 6-4 victory over Detroit Sunday night.

Joey Johnston scored twice, his second going into an empty net with 39 seconds left to play, to give the Seals the win over Detroit.

The Seals bounced back from an 11-0 defeat at the hands of the Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday night with Seals' goalie Gilles Meloche turning back 40 Red Wing shots, including 19 in the final period when Detroit scored twice and threatened to tie.

The win was only the second for California in the last 13 games.

Craig Patrick, Stan Gilbertson and Johnston provided Meloche with a 3-0 cushion in the first period.

Johnston's 11th goal of the season overcame a third period Red Wings' rally in which they outshot the Seals 21-7.

Yankees Obtain Alou From A's

Combined AP & UPI

HONOLULU — The New York Yankees acquired outfielder Matty Alou from the Oakland Athletics in exchange for pitcher Rob Gardner and a player to be named later in an American League transaction made Saturday.

A's owner Charles Finley explained "they (the Yankees) made us an offer we couldn't refuse." With the reacquisition of Gardner, the A's have six left-handers. They are: Vida Blue, Paul Lindblad, Ken Holtzman, Darold Knowles, Dave Hamilton and Gardner. Gardner pitched for the A's briefly in 1971.

Matty will be joining brother Felipe with the Yankees. Matty and Felipe were teammates with the San Francisco Giants in the early 1960s.

More Baseball

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Giants will play a 24-game spring training schedule in 1973, including five contests with the world champion Oakland A's and a pair of night games with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Giants will open the Cactus League season with their traditional game against the Chicago Cubs in Scottsdale, Ariz. They will meet the A's three times in Phoenix — their home base — and twice in Mesa. The Dodger games both will be played at night — on April 2-3.

CHICAGO — Wendell Smith, television sportscaster and former newspaperman who was largely responsible for Jackie Robinson being signed as the first black major league baseball player, died Sunday. He was 58.

It was while with the Pittsburgh Courier that he lobbied for bringing Robinson up to break the color barrier in major league league baseball. Robinson, who died last month, once said he would not have made the major leagues without Smith's efforts.

Football

TUCSON, Ariz. — Arizona Coach Bob Weber resigned after his Wildcats finished with a losing record for the fourth consecutive season.

SAN FRANCISCO — Southern California dominated the 1973 all Pacific-8 conference football team the same way it did its opponents — placing six players on the mythical team picked by league coaches.

The Trojans placed tight end Charles Young, tackle Pete Adams, center Dave Brown, defensive linemen John Grant and James Sims and linebacker Richard Wood on the 25-man squad which included place kicker Rod Garcia of Stanford, punter Bruce Barnes of UCLA and three offensive tackles.

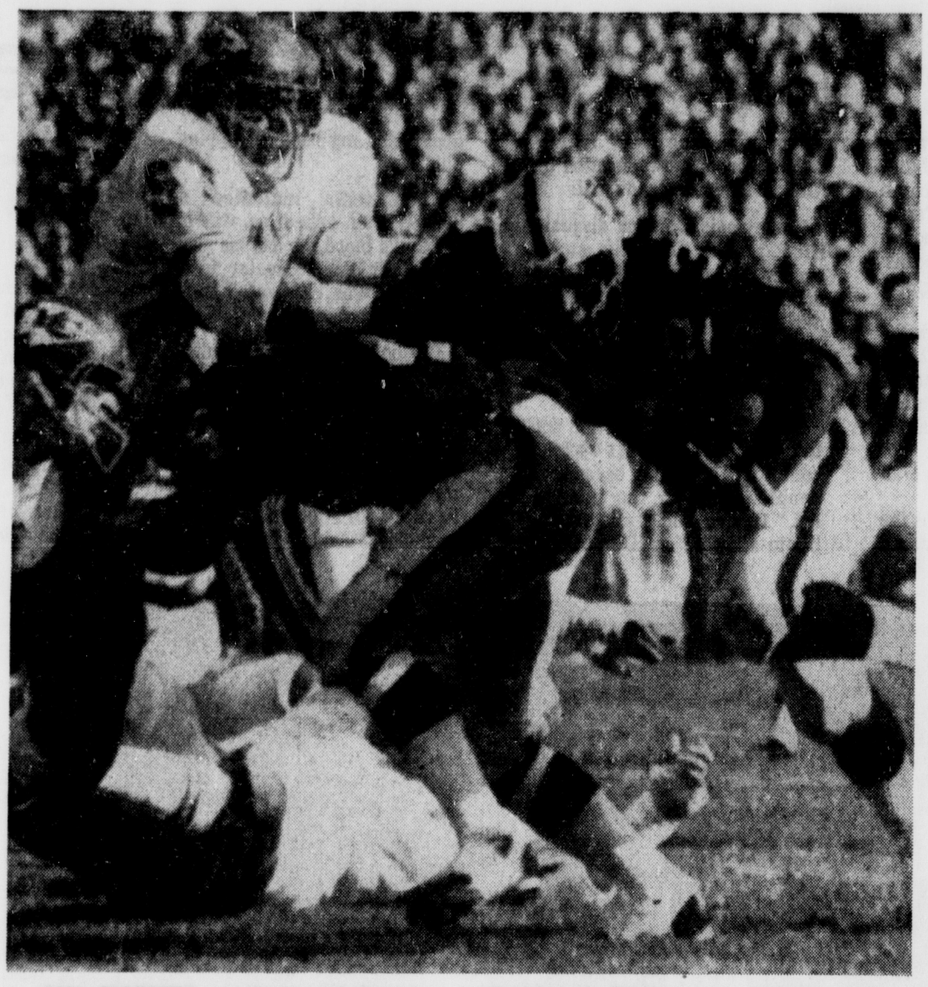

Dan Fouts of Oregon was named the team's quarterback while Steve Sweeney of California and Greg Specht of Oregon were named the wide receivers.

Auto Racing

GAINESVILLE, Ga. — Jerry Hansen of Bloomington, Minn., outlasted rain and cold to win the Formula A event at Road Atlanta, his third title of the week.

Bowling

CHICAGO — Don Johnson, of Akron, Ohio, topped Brooklyn, N.Y. challenger Mark Roth 207-181 to win the $12,000 first prize at the $85,000 Brunswick World Open Tournament.

SIX POINTS — Oakland Raider running back Charles Smith (23) used a block by teammate Marv Hubbard (44) to score a touchdown from two yards out in the first quarter yesterday at the Oakland Coliseum. Hubbard's block on Kansas City Chief linebacker Jim Lynch enabled Smith to register the National Football League game's first touchdown. The Raiders won 26-3. (UPI Telephoto)

Jan Stenerud kicked a 40-yard field goal for Kansas City's only points early in the second quarter and then it was all downhill for the Chiefs. Lamonica connected on a 14-yard toss to Fred Biletnikoff with 2:34 left in the second to make it 16-3 and after Gerald Irons intercepted a pass by Mike Livingston, Dawson's backup, Lamonica hit Ray Chester with a 19-yard pass for a 23-3 halftime edge.

Neither side scored in the third quarter and Blanda then added his second field goal in the fourth minute of the last quarter for the final points.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

UCLA Starts Year Off With Victory

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

UCLA is off and running in the new college basketball season, and so what else is new?

The Bruins, overwhelming picks to win their seventh straight National Collegiate Athletic Association title, started the latest campaign Saturday night with a ho-hum 94-53 victory over Wisconsin.

The victory stretched the Bruins' most current winning streak to 46 games and about the only record they don't hold these days is consecutive victories —56 held by the Bill Russell led University of San Francisco Dons. UCLA had a 47-game streak going until Houston and Elvin Hayes upset them in January 1969, but that's ancient history now and most people think the USF record will go tumbling this year.

Southern California, the other team in Los Angeles, also got off to a good start during the weekend by beating hometown Loyola, 83-69.

Bill Walton, UCLA's AllAmerica center, popped in 26 points and had 20 rebounds in leading the Bruins to their opening victory over Wisconsin. He left midway through the second half. Keith Wilkes hit on 8 of 12 attempts from the field while Larry Farmer scored 14 points.

The UCLA cast this year has lost only Henry Bibby as coach John Wooden starts his 25th year.

Southern Cal, ranked 17th in the pre-season UPI ratings, had little trouble handling Loyola. Mike Wester, a junior center with red hair and a strong resemblance to Walton, scored 18 points and grabbed 13 rebounds before leaving the game in the second half as the Trojans won going away. Bill Boyd, a 6-7 soph forward and the son of Trojan coach Bob Boyd, made his varsity debut a standout one as he scored 10 points.

In other games, Washington defeated Sub Pac 73-67 in a nocount game as Louie Nelson scored 28 points; William Averitt canned 43 points in leading Pepperdine to a 101-90 triumph over Doane of Nebraska and UC Irvine bowed to Minnesota 93-71.

Manzoni, Angel Win

Bob Manzoni and Bob Angel scored a 3 and 2 victory over Jerry Gransee and Al DeLucas Saturday morning to win the finals of the Rose Hill tournament at Indian Valley Golf Club.

49ers' Krueger Gets Married

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (AP) — San Francisco 49er Charles Krueger, a 6-foot-4, 268-pound defensive tackle, has wed the daughter of San Francisco Opera Director Kurt Adler.

Some 300 guests, including many teammates, looked on as Krueger, 35, and Kristin Adler, 30, were married Saturday in this San Francisco Peninsula community.

Krueger was limping during the ceremony at Valley Presbyterian Church because of a muscle he pulled when the 49ers beat the Dallas Cowboys Thanksgiving Day and went to the top of the National Football League West Division.

debut here at the Heritage, caught him at 212 with his 72.

Heard, who has won two tournaments (Citrus and Colonial) and more than $135,000 this year, forged into a tie for the lead at 3 under, early on the back nine Sunday but ran into a bogey-double bogey-bogey string "in which I never missed a shot but just made three mental errors" and needed a 15-foot birdie putt on the final green to salvage a 74 and an even-par 213.

The four tournament leaders are all young—with the 25-year-old Miller, who is two days older than Heard, the oldest of the four—and the nearest veteran is in a nine-way tie for fifth place at 214.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Billy Casper did not play in the Heritage and the leading money winner among those who did, George Archer. failed to make the cut.

"I sure hope the weather will be better for the final round than it was Sunday," said Miller who has a vacation home here at Hilton Head. "This course was not designed for severe weather. It's tough enough when the weather is good and par was more like 74 or 75.

Only two of the 73 golfers still in the field, Ed Sneed and Jim Jamieson, were able to break par Sunday—and they were just one under with their 70s. Sneed is in the 214 group and Jamieson is another stroke back. Only one of 78 golfers was able to break par at Harbour Town last Thursday, Bobby Nichols who had a 77-216 Sunday, but Fezler came within a stroke of the course record three Friday with a 66. Napa's Ron Cerrudo came in with a 78-223 and made the cut.

Last stop on the PGA tour is the Disney World which begins Thursday at Orlando, Fla.

New York Skier Nindl Triumphs

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI)—Hugo Nindl edged out a rookie to capture Sunday's Samsonite pro ski classic race, but it wasn't the rookie most observers expected.

Nindl beat Alain Penz, 24, of France for first plce in the slalom event of the classic, the first of 14 stops on the Benson and Hedges 100s Professional Ski Racing Grand Prix.

In winning the event, Nindl, 29, of Hunter Mountain, N.Y., pocketed $2,500 to lead the circuit in dollar winnings. But Penz won the giant slalom to lead in overall points, 40-35.

Jean-Claude Killy, the triple gold medal winner from France at the 1968 Winter Olympics, fell in his two runs and finished tied for ninth Saturday, and finished fifth Sunday.

PRO FOOTBALL

Redskins Wish Is Realized

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Washington got its wish, Oakland got its revenge and Pittsburgh got just a little closer Sunday.

That was the result of the three biggest games of the day in National Football League action as the Washington Redskins clinched a playoff slot with a 21-16 victory over the Green Bay Packers, the Oakland Raiders avenged an earlier loss to Kansas City with a 26-3 rout of the Chiefs and the Pittsburgh Steelers set up a showdown for their first title in 40 years by upending the Minnesota Vikings 23-10.

Bill Kilmer threw two touchdown passes and Washington's defense harrassed young Green Bay quarterbacks into errors to beat the Packers. The victory gave the Redskins a two-game lead in the NFC East and assured them of a playoff slot while the Packers fell into a tie for the NFC Central lead with Detroit, which beat the New York Jets Thanksgiving Day.

Kilmer completed 14-of-21 passes for 149 yards and threw TD passes of 25 yards to Jerry Smith and five to Charley Taylor. Larry Brown, playing with a sinus condition and a bruised heel, ran two yards for the other Redskin score.

Oakland, humiliated by a 27-14 loss to the Chiefs at Kansas City earlier this season, beat their bitter rivals physically Sunday. Daryle Lamonica threw two TD passes, Charlie Smith ran for one score and George Blanda kicked two field goals for the Raiders.

Rookie sensation Franco Harris scored one touchdown and set up another with a 67-yard run to lead the Steelers' upset of Minnesota which just about killed the Vikings' National Football Conference Central playoff chances. Harris ran 12 yards for Pittsburgh's first TD and with the score tied at 10-10, he dashed 67 yards to the Viking one, where Terry Bradshaw plunged over. Bradshaw added an insurance TC with a 17-yard screen pass to Frank Lewis.

Elsewhere, Cleveland ripped Buffalo 27-10, the New York Giants humiliated Philadelphia 62-10, New Orleans stunned Los Angeles 19-16, Atlanta topped Denver 23-20, Cincinnati defeated Chicago 13-3, San Diego clubbed Houston 34-20 and Baltimore trounced New England 31-0. St. Louis is at Miami tonight.

Mike Phipps rallied Cleveland from a 10-0 deficit to defeat the Bills. Phipps threw a 13-yard TD pass to Leroy Kelly for one score and set up Ken Brown's one-yard run for the go-ahead score with a 30-yard pass to Bo Scott. O.J. Simpson had 93 yards for Buffalo to go over the 1,000-yard mark.

Norm Snead threw three TD passes and reserve quarterback Randy Johnson threw for two scores and ran for another as the Giants set a club scoring mark with their victory over the Eagles.

Happy Feller's 33-yard field goal with six seconds left gave New Orleans its upset of the Rams and Bob Perry passed for one TD and set up two more in Atlanta's come-from-behind victory over Denver. Art Malone had two Falcon TDs.

Virgil Carter, released by the Bears three years ago, returned to Chicago to lead the Bengals to victory.

Cid Edwards scored two touchdowns to spark San Diego over the Oilers and Marty Domres threw three TD passes and Mike Curtis returned an interception for a score as Baltimore beat New England for its first home win this season.

ROLE OF LUCK IN ASHE WIN OVER LUTZ

ROME — With all other factors being equal, luck can be the intangible separating victory from defeat — just ask Aruthur Ashe.

Ashe said he was lucky, but his tennis was unbeatable and the money the most he ever made when he outlasted tenacious Bob Lutz of Tiburon to win the first winter World Championship of Tennis tourney at the end of a nine point tie-break after a long fifth set yesterday.

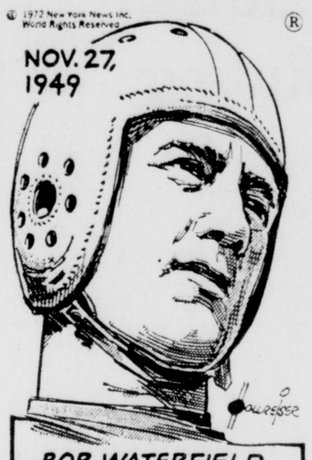

Missing one match point in the 10th game of the fifth set, Ashe boomed his big first serve in repeatedly to take the title 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 and $25,000 on the ninth point of the tie-break.

Lutz said that in a tie break situation it was a "question of luck." His finish brought him $10,000 for the evening spent on an uneven fast synthetic green carpet in front of a rowdy crowd of about 8,000.

Lutz got $10,000 for second place, $5,000 for third place went to Tom Okker of The Netherlands and $3,000 to Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Okker beat Drysdale 6-4, 7-5 in the match for third place.

Phillies Have 1st Draft Pick; Trades Seen

HONOLULU (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies were to get the first swing today when baseball's winter meetings open with a draft of minor league talent.

But it's more than likely that the leadoff team and the 23 other major league squads that follow will strike out looking for help among the bushes.

Historically, trades are the hot items at these annual affairs, not the draft picks.

Only 13 players were drafted by the majors at last year's session in Phoenix, and merely two of those struck around for any work in the big time. In contrast, the Phoenix meetings provided 5 deals involving 53 players.

At any rate, the Cleveland Indians appear ready to pick up a minor leaguer or two at the relative bargain-basement price of $25,000 apiece. In shaping their roster for these meetings, the Indians pared down to 38 men, two under the 40-player limit for winter.

Cleveland, which has already made two trades since the World Series, unloaded two left-handed hurlers-Marcellino Lopez and Bill Butler to their Oklahomas City team in the Triple-A American Association.

After the draft opens the week-long session, the minor leagues will hold a round of meetings today and Tuesday. The majors then will take over for the rest of the week.

The Phillies, who got the No. 1 drafting position because their 1972 record was the worst in baseball, will no doubt jump into the trading pool. The Phillies, who have already swung a seven-man deal, are in need of help at several positions.

Abdul-Rahman Gets Kudos From Mullins

OAKLAND (UPI)—Jeff Mullins, the Golden State Warriors guard, returned from the club's last trip full of regard for Mahdi Abdul-Rahman, the former Walt Hazzard.

"We've gotton a lot of static because we didn't have a ball handling guard, but we've got one now," Mullins declared Sunday.

"And when you're a good ball handler, passing comes a lot easier, because you don't have to look at the ball ... and you get defenders moving toward you so someone's usually open."

Mullins was commenting on Saturday's game at Kansas City when Abdul-Rahman scored 10 points in the third quarter while the Warriors were beating the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 133-114.

Abdul-Rahman, who led UCLA to the National Collegiate Athletic Association title in 1964, had 18 points for the evening. High man for the Warriors was Rick Barry with 35.

The Warriors play their next game Tuesday, entertaining Phoenix at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

2 Yards Difference In Ohio State Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Two yards gave Ohio State its incredible 14-11 victory over third-ranked Michigan Saturday and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

The Buckeyes shouldn't have won but they did—and they did it on sheer determination. They were beaten in every statistical category except one—the final score—and, of course, that's the one that counts.

Michigan doubled the Buckeyes in first downs (21-10), edged them in rushing yardage (184-175), and slaughtered them in passing yardage (160-17). The previously-undefeated Wolverines punted only twice to Ohio State's five times and neither team lost a fumble. The Buckeyes also committed the game's only turnover with an interception.

But in the end, Michigan, with all its statistical domination, needed only two more yards to win easily. Those two yards were preserved by Ohio State's tremendous goal line stands.

One of those two crucial yards was fought over just before the end of the first half when the Buckeyes held a 7-3 advantage. In six plays the Wolverines moved to a first and goal on the Buckeye one-yard line. But Ohio State's defense held and on fourth and less than a yard, Michigan coach Bo Shembechler decided to have his team go for the touchdown rather than an easy field goal which would have left it only a point behind at halftime.

Michigan quarterback Dennis Franklin, who had started the drive by hitting tight end Paul Seal with a 35-yard pass to the Ohio State 36, then took the snap, fumbled and fell on the ball on the Michigan two, the Buckeyes taking over with seven seconds left in the half.

The second big yard came under dispute in the fourth quarter when Ohio State, leading 14-11, again stymied the Wolverines. Michigan had a chance to win or tie—a tie would have given them the Rose Bowl berth—with first and goal on the Buckeyes' five-yard line. Three times Michigan tried and three times it "That goal line stand in the first half was the greatest," Ohio State coach Woody Hayes bubbled after the game, "until the second half. Our goal line defense is always tough. We work on it darn near every day." All the work paid off for the Buckeyes on Saturday when all the marbles were on the line. Now their next stop is the Rose Bowl against top-ranked Southern California. And it's all because of two yards.

Seventh-ranked Penn State, which could move up to fifth this week in the UPI poll following defeats by Nebraska (to Oklahoma on Thanksgiving Day) and Michigan, routed Pittsburgh 49-27 and ninthranked LSU, tied by Florida 33, were the only other teams in the top 10 in action.

In the second ten, Tennessee, ranked 12th, beat Kentucky 177, Arizona State, ranked 14th, downed Arizona 38-21, Missouri, tied for the 16th spot, lost to Kansas 28-17, North Carolina, tied for 16th, beat East Carolina 42-19, and 18th-ranked Iowa State lost to Oklahoma State 45-14.

Arizona State's victory gave it the Western Athletic Conference title and the host berth in the Fiesta Bowl against Missouri.

Nixon Says Planning Main Council Issue

(Last in a series of stories on the qualifications and background of candidates for the vacant seat on the San Rafael City Council.)

Jack G. Nixon chairman of the Marin County Planning Commission, has applied for appointment to the San Rafael City Council seat vacated by the recent death of Harry A. Barbier.

Nixon said he will run for election to the council in April, at which time Barbier's term expires, regardless of whether he is appointed to the post by the council.

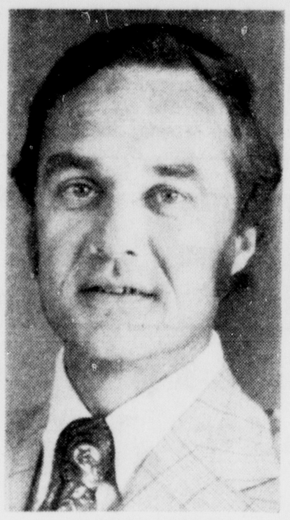

The 40-year-old Nixon said the key issue facing San Rafael is long-range planning. "San Rafael is a major business that requires adoption of long range policies and plans that provide direction for day-to-day decisions. The foremost issue is land-use planning," he said.

"Growth is so fast these days that it is difficult, if not impossible, to respond sensibly to development proposals without knowing where you want to be five, ten or twenty years in the future. I want to participate in this planning process," he said.

Nixon said San Rafael will have to grapple with two basic questions: "How densely developed should the city be while retaining the amenities of pleasant living, and what do we want our town to look like?"

He declared that redevelopment "is now an accomplished fact; the question is what form it will take," and urged against trying to turn the downtown area into another Northgate.

Nixon also cited the city's new general plan — "which should be coordinated with the proposed countywide plan" — and the open space acquisition program as opportunities "to change the direction of San Rafael to its proper place as the focal point of the county."

JACK G. NIXON
Seeks council seat

Nixon was appointed to the county planning commission in 1969, and has served as chairman since June, 1971.

He has served as a director of the Marinwood Community Services District, president of the United Homeowners Association of Greater San Rafael and as president of the Marinwood Homeowners Association.

He is a life insurance salesman in San Rafael and is past president of the Marin Association of Life Underwriters.

He received a bachelor's degree from the University of Missouri at Kansas City and won master's honors from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

He served as a gunnery officer with the Navy on the destroyer Jenkins during the Korean War. He was discharged honorably with the rank of Lieutenant.

He is a member of the Marin Republican Council, the Citizens Advisory Committee of Dominican College, and the Million Dollar Roundtable, an insurance sales group. He is statewide public service chairman for the California Association of Life Underwriters.

A resident of Marin for the past 10 years, he lives with his wife, Norma, at 301 Locust Avenue. The couple has two daughters and a son.

Governor's Race Eyed By Flournoy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —State Controller Houston I. Flournoy has indicated he probably will run for governor in 1974 while cautioning his fellow Republicans they are "not in very good shape" in California.

Flournoy told an interviewer Sunday (on KOVR's "State of the Capitol) that instead of basking in President Nixon's landslide victory over Sen. George McGovern the party should "take into account the real political world" and go after the young voters.

On another subject, Flournoy endorsed a $1.1 billion property tax relief-school finance measure backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, which is pending before the legislature.

Asked about his political plans, Flournoy said "the change I'd be most interested in would be the governor's race in 1974."

The former legislator, who will have completed two four-year terms as controller in 1974, said he will give the governor's contest his "highest priority" politically.

Flournoy, regarded as a representative of the party's moderate-to-liberal wing, said the results of Republican congressional and legislative races on Nov. 7 "indicate we're not in very good shape at all."

He said that while Nixon carried California with more than 55 per cent of the vote, Democratic congressional and legislative candidates received more than 53 per cent statewide.

"That is more indicative (than the presidential race) of the kind of trouble the Republican party in the state is going to have in the future," he said. "We have got to recognize the importance of the young voter and the Republican nominees are going to have to be able to appeal to these people."

Flournoy said he doubted the Republican party generally could put together the same voter coalition against Democrats that Nixon did against McGovern. He characterized the presidential race as primarily anti-McGovern.

Senate Rejects Bill To Soften Environmental Report Ruling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A conservationist-opposed bill aimed at softening the force of a state Supreme Court ruling that requires environmental impact reports on many private construction projects was rejected Sunday night by the Senate.

The bill, which was described by its author as a "safety valve" measure, would allow a moratorium until June 1, 1973 on filing the reports for private projects and give the legislature time to clarify the Environmental Quality Act of 1970.

The upper house turned back Walsh's measure and acted on some 25 other pieces of legislation in an unusual weekend meeting of almost two hours.

The 37 senators who were at their desks shortened their Thanksgiving holiday and collected $120 each by protecting their $30 a day expense allowances.

Legislators receive the daily expense allowanc providing they do not adjourn for more than three days at one time.

The Assembly, which like the Senate recessed last Wednesday, chose to give up the expense allowance for its members and return to work Monday.

The legislature has set an adjournment date for Friday, and before they call it quits they must decide on a major $1.1 billion property-tax relief-school finance bill backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys.

The state court's ruling on the Environmental Quality Act resulted in confusion among local government, business and construction officials who claimed the decision would bring the state's building industry to a halt.

In its controversial decision, the court ruled 6-1 that environmental impact reports must be filed on private as well as public projects which pose a "significant" impact on the environment.

During debate on the Walsh measure, a proponent of the bill, Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, warned that "multi-million dollars in projects are coming to a halt."

Another supporter of Walsh's bill, Sen. Ralph C. Dills, DGardena, argued that "every man on this floor knows our intent was not to include private projects" in the environmental impact report requirements when the 1970 law was enacted.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, who spoke against the measure, declared approval of the bill "could really mess up the state in six or seven months."

Besides the Walsh bill, two other measures aimed at clarifying the Environmental Quality Act were introduced after the recent court ruling.

A measure by Assemblyman William T. Knox, D-Richmond, would set a 120-day moratorium on the effect of the court's ruling. However, conservationist groups have thrown their support behind a bill by Assemblyman Paul Priola, R-Pacific Palisades, which they say would do most to protect the environment while the law is clarified.

Both the Knox and Priola bills are pending before Senate committees.

Behr Bills Approved In Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate Sunday night approved two Medi-Cal "reform" bills aimed at insuring that patients receive prompt medical care.

Both measures by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-Tiburon, were sent to the governor when the upper house concurred in Assembly amendments to the bills.

Under one of the bills, physicians would not be required to obtain approval from the Department of Health Care Services when they feel nonemergency care is needed. The measure passed on a 24-13 vote.

The other bill would require the state to give "sound medical reasons" to Medi-Cal patients who are denied the services of a doctor. It was approved on a 23-7 vote.

Currently, doctors must secure approval for further medical care when a Medi-Cal patient has used his allotted two monthly visits. State-employed consultants are also required to give their prior authorization before a patient is approved for certain nonemergency care.

Interstate Road System Growing

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A government report shows the interstate highway system is four-fifths complete with the finishing of another 1,404 miles during the year ending Sept. 30.

Now open for traffic are 33,796 miles of the 42,500-mile system, which was started in the 1950s and is the most ambitious project of its kind in the nation's history.

Of the 8,704 miles remaining, Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe said in the weekend report, 3,742 miles are under construction and 4,962 miles are still in a state of preconstruction planning.

Former Cowboy Movie Star Ill

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Ken Maynard, cowboy movie star of the 1920s and 30s, was in good condition today at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital.

Maynard, 77, a contemporary of Tom Mix and Hoot Gibson, appeared in more than 300 films, but has spent most of the past 20 years in obscurity. He was hospitalized Friday. The hospital did not reveal his ailment, but he was treated last month for dehydration.

The magic of Childhood.

Remember?

That's when the niftiest place to keep your money was in a wooden cigar box. And you really tried to save pennies, but lost them to a gumball machine eventually. Then your mother made you put half your allowance into a piggy bank that you hated because you couldn't get the nickels out when you wanted them.

At Bell Savings we make saving easier than that . . . particularly for junior savers. At Bell Savings their money earns money, just like magic: five percent on regular passbook accounts, or up to six percent on time deposits. And though they may not be too interested in our personal services, you'd probably like the free checking account and free safe deposit box that comes with a minimum deposit.

So when the time comes to teach your children about saving, bring them to Bell Savings where their money grows like magic. (It's a good place for grown-ups to save, too.) Bell Savings . . . the money-magic people.
